RAF BOMBS RAKE BERLIN; HITLER HURLS NEW FURY

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 7—Huge waves of German bombers, attacking in groups of more than a score each, swept in against London late today and the dull boom of bombs reverberated over the city for an hour and 42 minutes.

The sky directly over the Associated Press building, in the heart of London, was speckled with anti-aircraft bursts as nine of the raiders roared high over the center of the capital in the first attack in 16 hours.

Buildings shook with the thud of the bombs and the crash of anti-aircraft fire.

The waves of attackers spotted from the Associated Press office broke up into formations of from five to more than 20.

PLANES IN FIRE TRAP

Reverberations from the bombs shook the table from which this dispatch was being written. The Associated Press building is two blocks from the Thames and a mile east of Charing Cross.

Anti-aircraft bursts spotted the sky immediately overhead like mushrooms. One group of a half dozen planes was caught in a solid ring of shell bursts from London's inner defenses.

It was the haviest attack thus far on London.

The constant chatter of the anti-aircraft batteries ceased for a few seconds, and one could hear people in the streets below shouting with excitement.

There must have been at least 50 of the dive-bombers attacking in groups of 10 over one section, while others wheeled and awaited their turn in the evening sky.

CROWDS SEE, LEAVE

As the air raid continued a blanket of smoke rolled out of the east. Out of this dull canopy 35 German planes emerged in a group, wheeled leisurely to the northeast and continued on their way. Behind came 15 more planes, at about 12,000 feet.

The streets which for a time were crowded with the curious watching the titantic air grapple, by now virtually had been deserted.

LONDON CLAIMS

LONDON, Sept. 7 (INS)—British fighting planes and anti-aircraft batteries shot down 1688 German aircraft of all types between June 17 and Sept. 6, according to official government statistics issued today. These German planes included 686 heavy bombers and 408 fighters, it was stated. German air force personnel losses were estimated at more than 4000 men.

The statement reiterated that the German losses were out of all proportion to British losses in the same period. It cited as an instance of this the week ending Sept. 6, in which, it was claimed, Germany lost at least 800 trained airmen as compared to 57 British pilots lost.

WAR CHART—As the fury of the war increased, waves of German planes blasted at the London area (1.). RAF bombers rained bombs on Nazi air bases on French coast (2). Germans sounded air-raid alarms in Berlin and Munich (3, 4,). Rome acknowledged damaging of railroad yards at Turin (5). RAF also attacked Italian air field on Sardinia (6). Rome claimed Italian fliers dropped bombs on Malta (7) and on fuel depots at Suez (8). Iron Guard fomented new anti-Jewish riots in Bucharest (9). Hungarian troops marched into Oradea (10) in northern Transylvania.

BERLIN, Sept. 7—In the heaviest night raid Berlin has yet experienced, British bombers pounded the German capital for nearly three hours today in an attack that raised fiery clouds of smoke over five different sections of the city.

German sources regarded the raid, featured by terrific anti-aircraft fire and the roar of British planes diving at their targets, as British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's reply to Chancellor Hitler's threat to "eradicate" British cities by bombing raids.

The air raid alarms sounded in Berlin at 15 minutes after midnight and the all-clear signal was not given until 3 a. m.

One of the areas hit by the R. A. F. bombers was only a 10-minute walk from the Reichstag section in the central part of the German capital.

The raid, German authorities said, had all the earmarks of a systematic attack, evidently designed to prove that the British wi[ll] not be deterred by Hitler's threats of retaliation.

In view of this, Berlin observers believed, the moment is not far off when retaliatory aerial warfare will begin in earnest.

HEAVY PLANE LOSSES

Official sources said that in raids on London for retaliation for the blasting given Berlin, German planes destroyed 67 British planes, while the Germans lost only 24, it was claimed.

London placed the plane loss, officially, at 45 German bombers and 19 British craft. — Editor's Note.

GERMAN CLAIMS

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (INS)—Britain lost 320 planes in air battles, chiefly over southern England, during the first five days of this month, German military experts claimed today.

Germany lost 107 planes in the same period, these quarters said.

Most of the British losses were said to be pursuit planes, and it was asserted that the British pursuit squadrons now are showing signs of weakening resistance, while the Reich is "still holding back its chaser squadrons for a final blow."

During the same five days, it was claimed, the German navy sank 163,000 tons of enemy merchant vessels.

RUMANIA PLEDGED TO AXIS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 7 (AP)—Gen. Ion Antonescu, new military dictator of mutilated Rumania, unleashed a sweeping purge of adherents of former King Carol today and swung the nation 100 per cent into line with the Rome-Berlin axis.

Police rounded up scores of prominent persons regarded as enemies of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard, and the Bucharest press launched unrestrained and venomous attacks on Carol and his red-haired friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu.

Antonescu dispatched especially warm telegrams of allegiance to Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, who have guaranteed Rumania's shrunken boundaries against further amputation.

"The first thought of the Rumanian people in their historic moment is to do their duty in expressing belief in the great German people and their great Fuehrer," he told Hitler.

To Mussolini he said: "The Rumanian people again send you an expression of their fealty and hope in the Italian people and their great future."

OUTBREAKS CHECKED

The general said over the radio he had forced abdication of Carol to avert civil war, and warned the Rumanian populace that severe punishment would follow any disturbances.

Although 10,000 men and women filled the streets near the palace in hopes of catching a glimpse of the new King, Carol's 18-year-old son Mihai, the crowds remained quiet and orderly in contrast to previous disorders.

The people appeared well pleased with the ascension of Mihai to the throne he once held as boy-king.

Carol's whereabouts since his abdication remained a mystery.

An Associated Press dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said abdicated King Carol crossed the frontier into Yugoslavia today aboard a special train en route to Switzerland. The deposed king left Rumanian soil in late afternoon. His train was identified as it paused briefly at Velika Kikinda, just across the border of Yugoslavia. Carol was expected to pass through Belgrade tonight.

In Bucharest, government quarters, either by confusion or secretive design, declared yesterday that Carol had boarded the royal yacht at Constanta with Madame Lupescu. It was acknowledged today that he had a permit to enter Switzerland and the same sources amended their earlier statements to say that he was on his way there—Editor's note.

Thirty-nine persons accompanied the former king, the German broadcast said. Mme. Lupescu, Carol's long-time friend, was said to be traveling under the name of Lorenz, accompanied by her father.

The baggage of the royal party required 30 wagons, the radio said.

Industry Fight Slows House Vote on Draft

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—House leaders, seeking a wide margin of approval for the Burke-Wadsworth conscription legislation, were reported about ready today to drop their fight against a tentatively approved amendment providing a 60-day try-out of voluntary enlistments before invoking the draft.

While all said they had reached no actual agreement on the 60-day provision, there was known to be strong sentiment among them to close the conflict over this section, approved Thursday 185 to 155 but subject to another vote, should apponents demand it, before the bill finally is disposed of.

A primary consideration was said to be that inclusion of the amendment would heighten the entire bill's acceptability to House members.

Leaders have predicted passage by a margin of at least 50 "yeas," but have worked to increase this all possible.

An amendment designed to facilitate financial settlements of installment plan purchases by drafted men, was adopted.

The plan, sponsored by Rep. Harness (R.) of Indiana, would permit the buyer and seller of an automobile, for instance, to negotiate an agreement on payments falling due during a draftees' 12-months training period.

Harness explained that under present law, the owner of the car could repossess it only by going through the courts.

Among other amendments under consideration, one would provide for the government to take over needed plants on a rental basis; another would add to this provision a set of fine-and-imprisonment penalties for manufacturers who refused o accept defense orders at a "reasonable price."

SEEK SPEEDY ACTION

Efforts to speed action on the bill were spurred yesterday by President Roosevelt's remark that time flies when he was asked at his press conference for comment on conscription, excess profits tax and appropriation measures then pending.

Soon thereafter the Senate wound up congressional action on what may be the session's last big defense money bill, carrying $5,251,000,000 to help equip a 2,000-

NEW TURN IN R. I. DEATH MYSTERY

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 7—Mystery surrounding the death of attractive, 26-year-old Mrs. Muriel Blood, wife of a State Department of Labor investigator, deepened today as Medical Examiner T. A. Krolicki ordered her brain, stomach and other organs turned over to State Toxicologist Wallace Bohrer for analysis.

The young wife, clad only in a nightgown, was found unconscious in the driveway of her home. She died soon afterward at Memorial Hospital.

An early theory that she had fallen or jumped from a top floor bedroom window was tentatively abandoned when it was established that the window was partly closed and the spot where she was found was 20 feet distant from the house.

POLICE BAFFLED

Police Chief Leonard Mills said today:

"We are continuing to press our investigation. There are many baffling angles of this death still to be cleared up."

Chief Mills began questioning all members of the household, including Mrs. Blood's parents, who share the home.

The husband, Richard E. Blood, is 16 years older than Mrs. Blood was.

Blood told police his wife got up in the night, but believed she was going to let out the dog.

When she failed to return, he went to look for her and finally found her unconscious in the driveway, he said.

HAD BEEN MOODY

Chief Mills said relatives told him Mrs. Blood had been noticeably moody lately.

In an initial phase of the probe, police took fingerprints on the third floor window in an effort to determine whether or not she might have fallen.

The woman's husband told police he did not know how long she may have lain in the driveway, but he believed it was only for a few minutes.

Investigators found an aperture of about 10 inches between the screen and window, an opening not large enough for a body to pass through, Dr. Krolicki pointed out.

"The screen was of a type that would not have worked itself back had she fallen through that opening," Dr. Krolicki said.

"Examination of the screen failed to show any silk threads from her nightgown which would be ordinarily discernible under the eye of the spectroscope."

MRS. EMILY HALL SPRECKELS, JR.

Mate's Naziism Caused Her to Sue

SWEET ON NAZIS, SUGAR HEIR SUED

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Sept. 7 (INS)—Her millionaire husband openly and enthusiastically admired Naziism, Mrs. Emily Hall Spreckels declared today in suing for divorce from Adolph B. Spreckels, Jr., on the ground of cruelty.

One upsetting episode, the petition charged, took place as recently as last Jan. 20 in Luchow's restaurant, prominent German-American eating place in New York.

On the occasion, according to the complaint, the scion of a prominent California sugar fortune family placed a Nazi flag on their table over his wife's protests.

When the sugar scion refused to remove the flag the manager ordered the removal of both Spreckels and the emblem from the establishment, according to the court action.

"So we left the cafe amid the hisses of the other diners," charged Mrs. Spreckels, widow of Baron Max von Romberg of Germany.

Ever since their marriage in Reno in August, 1939, her husband insisted on choosing as his closest friends individuals openly sympathetic with the Nazi government of Germany, the complaint alleged.

The plaintiff, daughter of the late William H. Hall and Mrs. Purdee Smith Hall, asked $2500 a month temporary alimony.

Mrs. Spreckels created a sensation last winter at the Beaux Arts Diamond Ball in the Ritz Carlton, New York, by appearing in a necklace and turban clip of diamonds worth a half million dollars and the only four black orchids in New York.

SPONSOR — Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., former Lady Sylvia Ashley, left, and Mrs. Howard Dietz exhibit dolls which will go on display to aid British war relief.

Driver Gets 40 Out in Bus Fire

Forty persons fled from a smoke-filled Boston Elevated bus at Roxbury Crossing today when overheated wires burned through insulation and set the rear end afire.

Through the speedy action of Patrick McSherry, operator of the bus, who opened emergency doors, all the passengers were in the street in a matter of minutes and no one, officials said, suffered injury.

McSherry and Frank McCarthy, Elevated inspectors, fought the blaze with hand extinguishers until fire apparatus arrived. Damage was estimated at $250 and traffic was tied up for 20 minutes.

The bus, out of Dudley st. terminal, was bound for Allston.

House Vote On Draft Near

000-man army and build a two-ocean navy. Only the President's signature was needed to make the funds available.

The Senate Finance Committee worked toward a final draft of the excess profits tax bill today. That measure already has passed the House.

Even though House leaders accept the 60-day draft delay, it still might be changed before Congress finished with the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Since no such provision was written into the Senate version of the bill, the House section could be rewritten by the conference committee assigned to work out a compromise between the Senate and House.

Rep. Smith (D.) of Connecticut, sponsored one of the industry amendments expected to arouse considerable opposition despite the fact that it had the approval of the military committee. He would permit the government to take over defense factories temporarily on a rental basis when it could not reach satisfactory production agreements with the operators.

PENALTIES URGED

Moreover, he would provide penalties up to three years in prison and fines up to $50,000 for plant managers who refused to accept defense orders at a "reasonable price," the price being determined by the government.

Rep. Vinson (D.) of Georgia, advocated substantially the same sort of amendment except that he would omit the penalty section.

HOUSE DEFENSE TAX CHANGED FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (INS)—Nearing the end of a whirlwind drive to raise additional revenue for the national defense program, the Senate finance committee hoped today to complete action soon on a drastically revised House approved tax bill.

Sen. Harrison (D.) of Mississippi, chairman of the committee, predicted the measure, already designed to raise revenue in excess of the House bill, will be completed by nightfall. If this schedule is carried out, the bill will be taken up by the Senate Monday.

Harrison voiced his optimistic prediction after the committee, in an all-day executive session, virtually rewrote the House measure, which brought widespread criticism from industrial leaders and William S. Knudsen, materials production chief of the defense commission.

Although the changes in the House bill adopted by the committee are subject to last minute revision, it was predicted most of them will remain intact. They include:

1—Elimination of the 4.1 per cent penalty levy on normal income of corporations that elect to compute their excess profits taxes on the average earnings schedule rather than the invested capital method.

2—Increase the normal corporation income tax from 20.9 to 24 per cent. The increased percentage would apply to corporations with incomes of less than $25,000.

3—Elimination of a differential between tax rates scheduled applicable to average earnings and invested capital. This is designed to place all corporations under a uniform rate schedule, ranging from 25 per cent on the first $20,000 of excess profits to 50 per cent in exces sof $500,000.

As the bill now stands it was estimated it would yield during the year $485,000,000, instead of $305,000,000 under the House bill. Future yields depend on the volume of defense business, but committee members estimate from $900,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Brig.-Gen. Thomas A. Terry, in command of the 6th Coast Artillery at Fort Winfield Scott, Cal., was assigned by the War Department today to command the 1st Coast Artillery District, with headquarters at Boston.

Gen. Terry was born in Abbeville, Ala. During the World War he served in France with the 5th Coast Artillery. Subsequently, he was assistant chief of staff of the 9th Corps Area and a member of the War Department's general staff in Washington.

Constellation Now Ruled Unseaworthy

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Frigate Constellation—oldest Navy warship, which was recommissioned two weeks ago—was declared unseaworthy today on the 143rd anniversary of her launching, and probably will spend the remainder of her days in Newport.

Seamen Here Tell of Nazi Raider Coup

Thirty-two seamen, crew of the former Matson Line freighter Makawao, arrived in Boston today with an amazing story of a disguised Nazi raider that came boldly overseas in a British convoy, then sailed south to raise havoc with craft carrying British supplies.

Their own ship was a victim of this mysterious "Flying Dutchman" of the Caribbean.

SUNK BRITISH SHIP

It had sunk a big British liner only a short time after leaving the protecting guns of the destroyers in the convoy and the Nazis themselves boasted of the number of prizes they had made, the seamen said.

This mysterious ship, painted whtie, with Swedish flags marked on either side, is in appearance a lumbering freight carrier, but actually has a speed of at least 28 knots and whips out of concealed hatches a battery of three eight-inch guns—cruiser size—according to the story.

Timothy Keating of Brook ave., Roxbury, who was second engineer of the sunken Makawao, was one of the 32 survivors. They landed him on the Canadian National liner Lady Hawkins, from the British West Indies.

The Makawao, said Keating, had changed its registry from American to Honduran, and was carrying a cargo of beauxite—aluminum ore—from British Guiana to St. Thomas. At St. Thomas the ore is transshipped to Canada.

HALTED BY SHOT

"We were but a short time out of port when this ship, about 12,000 tons, began to overtake us," Keating said. "She was flying the Sweish flag and had Swedish flags painted on her sides.

"We were amazed at the speed she showed. We might as well have been anchored.

"We were more amazed when suddenly she fired a shot and down came her Swedish colors. Up went the Nazi naval flag.

"We stopped. You can be sure of that. We could see this broadside battery of big guns on her deck. She dropped a boat and it came alongside. Its crew was in charge of a German naval lieutenant.

"He asked Capt. Jensen for his papers, told him he was sarry, but the Makawao was carrying contraband and would have to be sunk. He was very solicitious about our lifeboats being seaworthy and made sure we had food, water and rum. He told the captain to get us off.

JOKE TO GERMANS

"I talked with him myself. He and his boat-crew seemed to think it was all a great joke. I asked him why.

"Then he boasted of how his ship had made the trip overseas as a Swedish vessel, under the protection of British destroyers and cruisers.

"He said," continued Keating," that when they neared this side they signaled they were leaving the convoy as did a big Harrison (British) liner. They went through all the formalities.

"A little while afterwards, the German said, they sank the liner, and had been sinking British ships ever since."

According to Keating, the raider must have been loaded with prisoners, since it is customary to take into custody the officers of a ship seized for contraband, like the Makawoa. Keating's captain and deck officers were not arrested.

The Makawao survivors were given directions to the nearest land, British Guiana, before the Nazis opened the seacocks of their ship. They rowed 38 hours to port.

Trolley Ad Agents In Bankruptcy Court

Eastern Advertising Co., which makes the advertising placards for trolley cars, subway and elevated trains, was petitioned into bankruptcy in federal court today.

100 NEAR AS BANDIT GETS $40

With his hand in his pocket, as if holding a gun, a dungaree-clad bandit held up the manager of a busy Dorchester market today and escaped with $40 from the cash register.

Victim of the robbery was James W. McDonough, manager of the store in Dorchester ave., between Savin Hill ave. and Bay st.

He was in the cashier's cage, within easy earshot of more than 100 customers, when the supposed gunman sauntered up, hand in pocket, and said in a low voice:

"This is a stickup! Hand over the money from the register."

McDonough grabbed the robber's right arm, but the man pulled away and told him:

'Let go or Ill shoot!"

Convinced the man was really armed and desperate, McDonough emptied out the cash register.

Scooping up the money with his free hand, the bandit walked deliberately out of the store. Customers were unaware of the robbery.

MOTHER GIVES BOY BURGLAR TO LAW

A Jamaica Plain mother surrendered her 17-year-old son and another boy to police today, after the son had confessed to her he was involved in a housebreak in Centre St.

The break was in the home of wealthy Dr. Calvin B. Faunce, and it was foiled when the doctor and his son, James, returned unexpectedly from their summer place in Scituate.

Finding three youths looting the mansion, Dr. Faunce and his son grappled with them, capturing one. The other two escaped.

Surrendered by his mother today was Harold E. Outten, of Oakview ter., Jamaica Plain.

In West Roxbury court he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering in the daytime, attempted larceny and malicious destruction of property.

He was held in $500, personal recognizance, for a continued hearing next week.

Also held were two 15-year-old Jamaica Plain high school boys. One was captured by the Faunces. The other was surrendered with young Outten by Mrs. Lydia Outten.

Cop-Killer Moved to Death Cell

Condemned Men's Row in Cherry Hill section of Charlestown State Prison had a new occupant today when Joseph Leo Brooks, 29-year-old Sing Sing parolee, was brought in from Dedham Jail under sentence of death for slaying a policeman.

Brooks was the first to enter the dread section of four cells since Oscar V. Bartolini, who won commutation of a death sentence to life imprisonment after the murder of Grayce Asquith, Weymouth "Merry Widow." That was 20 months ago.

The condemned man, convicted last night by a Norfolk County jury for killing Patrolman Edward F. Lee last May 15th, was moved in from Dedham shortly before noon.

Sentenced to die in the electric chair on Oct. 20, he will spend his time in Cherry Hill until 10 days before the date of his execution. Then he is moved to the death house.

Brooks was handcuffed to Deputy Sheriffs Dell W. Turner and Joseph T. Hunter on the 15-mile trip from jail to prison. In the automobile which carried the prisoner and his guards were High Sheriff Samuel H. Wragg of Norfolk County and Deputy Sheriff Norris Pineault.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Many churches in the nation's capital will hold special services tomorrow in response to President Roosevelt's proclamation of that day as "a day of prayer."

The President, in a proclamation issued last month, called upon all citizens to observe the day with prayer, "beseeching the Ruler of the universe to bless our republic, to make us reverently grateful for our heritage and firm in its defense, and to grant to this land and to the troubled world a righteous, enduring peace."

SERMONS ASK PEACE

In keeping with a Presidential proclamation setting tomorrow aside as a "Day of Prayer for Peace," churches throughout Greater Boston tomorrow will join the churches throughout the nation in asking divine aid in bringing peace to the world.

Night Shopping Traps 3 Boys

No doubt about it, this was the right day to be shopping for Sunday dinner, but Patrolman William Walizer of Brookline thought it was slightly out of the groove for three boys to be carrying loads of fruit and vegetables along the street at 1 o'clock in the morning.

So off to the police station they all went, later to Brookline court. Judge Daniel A. Rollins found all three youths guilty of having visited a store in Harvard st. before opening hours. He continued the cases for three months.

The youths, each 17, gave the names of Edward S. Marteli, Inman st., Cambridge; Thomas E. McGrath of Gilson ter., Somerville, and Robert J. Walsh, Somerville ave., Somerville.

CHARLES PINN OF JAMAICA PLAIN
Father Guilty of Assaulting Him

Mother of 7 to Leave Mate Who Beat Baby

Found guilty of assault and battery on his two-year-old son, Carl T. Pinn, 48, of Emsella ter., Jamaica Plain, learned today his wife could not forgive him and had decided to leave him after 18 years of married life.

Pinn, WPA surveyor and father of seven children, was found guilty in West Roxbury court and given a three-month suspended sentence. Mrs. Pinn testified her daughter Dora, 15, told her of the assault.

Pinn told the court he "merely spanked" the child because "he cried and whined."

Her eyes brimming with tears, Mrs. Pinn said today:

"I loved my husband for all these years, but I can never erase from my mind what he has done. Sometimes I can't believe it. I've decided the only thing to do is to leave him forever. He just can't be the man I thought I married."

Dr. Mabelle Hiscock, sent to the Pinn home by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, testified the baby's thighs were badly bruised.

Mrs. Pinn said she and the other children had gone to Quincy Monday, leaving Dora to take care of Charles. When she returned, she said, she found her daughter hysterical and the baby wimpering.

Pinn insisted he was unable to stand the child's crying and suddenly "lost my head."

Four Held In $2 Theft

Three men and a woman charged with taking part in the $2 robbery of a junkman were held in $500 bail each in East Cambridge court today for hearing on Sept. 13 after they entered not guilty pleas.

Victor Doyer, 38, of Decatur st.; Frank Seybolt, 38, of Pilgrim st., and Mrs. Helen Thompson, 30, of Austin st., all of Cambridge; and Charles Campbell, 37, of Hudson, were the four arrested on complaint of William Willitzch, 58, of Marion st., Cambridge.

Willitzch told police he was beaten and robbed by the men of $2 in change after Mrs. Thompson had lured him into a house in Austin st. on the pretext she had junk for sale.

German Troopship Sinking Is Denied

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (INS)—Germany today officially denied claims that the German troopship Marion had been torpedoed in the Kattegat. Reports earlier said 3000 lives were lost when the Marion was sunk.

It was announced the German naval supply ship Pioneer, 3285 tons, was damaged in the Kattegat but not through enemy action, and was abandoned with slight loss of life.

Bomb Inventor Paid $592,719 U. S. Claim

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed today a measure ordering payment of $592,719 to Lester P. Barlow, inventor, in settlement of his claim that the government infringed airplane bomb patents during the World War.

10 Go to Aid Fight for Old Colony

Ten state officials left today for Washington to appear Monday before the Interstate Commerce Commission in a final attempt to save Old Colony Railroad passenger service. Among them are Asst. Atty.-Gen. Burke Sullivan, Public Utilities Commissioner Richard D. Grant, Sen. Jarvis Hunt, chairman of the special legislative commission on railroad facilities; Rep. William A. Jones of Barnstable, vice-chairman of the special legislative commission; Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney of Suffolk County, member of the special commission; Rep. Bernard P. Casey, a member of the legislative commission; Atty. Dwight B. McCormack, counsel for the special commission; State Commissioner of Taxation Henry F. Long; William H. Kirley, director of the railroad division of the State Department of Public Utilities, and Charles W. Dow, transportation analyst of the Department of Public Utilities.

Dow will be a witness and Commissioner Grant may be called.

One of the chief arguments to be stressed by the Massachusetts delegation will be the necessity of continuing service on account of national defense, especially with reference to the Fore River shipyards. They will contend if the Old Colony is abandoned the Fore River yards will not be able to continue.

3500 at Rites For Fr. Downey

With more than 3500 mourners, including state and city notables, in attendance, funeral services were held today for Rev. Joseph Patrick Downey, C. SS. R., former national chaplain of the Elks and director for the past four years of the Mission high school, Roxbury.

Father Downey, a native of Boston, died of a heart attack Tuesday at the age of 55.

Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated in Mission Church, Roxbury, by Very Rev. William T. McCarty, national provincial of the Redemptorist Order.

"BOSTON AFTER DARK," by George Holland, is a regular feature of the Boston Evening American.

TO BOLSTER BRITAIN'S NAVY—Aided by two tugs, this destroyer leaves the Charlestown Navy Yard bound for Canada and dash across Atlantic. Destroyers are reported speeding to rendezvous with British Battleships off Nova Scotia. This photo was released by the U. S. Navy Department in Boston.

WILLKIE SAYS SHIP DEAL DICTATORIAL

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 7—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, told 70 farm paper editors that the agreement to trade 50 American destroyers for military bases in British possessions was "the most dictatorial and arbitrary act of any President in the history of the United States."

The Republican presidential nominee offered these suggestions to 70 farm paper editors after telling them that the agreement to trade 50 American destroyers for military bases in British possessions was "the most dictatorial and arbitrary act of any President in the history of the United States."

"If we cannot defeat the dictators through the processes of democracy," said Willkie, "then it will prove that the democratic way is not the effective way."

FINISHES TOUR PLANS

In preparation for his Western trip, Willkie today worked over material which he will use in his program of seeing as many people and being seen by as many people as is humanly possible before the end of the campaign.

Since his acceptance speech at Elwood, Willkie has come to two decisions: To make as few set speeches as possible, and to trust to personal appearances more than to radio broadcasts.

No presidential candidate in recent years has contemplated such a campaign swing as he plans. Leaving Rushville next Thursday or Friday, Willkie will swing out r. Roosevelt's announcement that up from California through Oregon an Washington. Eventually he will wind up in White Plains, N. Y., for the state convention, then back to Detroit and finally to Rushville—all this in less than a month.

TO INVADE NORTH

As the itinerary stands he will travel more than 8000 miles on this trip and as he has already traveled more than 7000 miles the prospect is that he will do a total of 25,000 to 30,000 miles before ending his campaign.

Willkie has said he will visit every State. Although he has no definite schedule for visiting the South, it appears likely he will campaign below the Mason-Dixon line before the campaign ends.

He has maintained from the outset that he believed it was possible to "crack the solid South" and he has said nothing recently that would indicate he has changed his mind.

SHIP SWAP FLAYED BY WALSH

Transfer of additional U. S. destroyers to Britain went forward today under warning from Sen. David I. Walsh that the entire procedure is "dangerous" and a threat to America's neutrality.

Massachusetts' senior senator termed the transfers capable of bringing serious consequences to this nation. He added that replacement would cost the navy department $1,000,000,000.

"However," Walsh added, "I have always favored this country acquiring naval and air bases in the western hemisphere, which was part of the deal."

With eight of the destroyers already flying the British flag, two others today were speeding to a rendezvous with British battleships off Nova Scotia.

The latest departures from here were the Doran and the Hopewell, while five others, the Abbot, McKenzie and Thomas at Charlestown navy yard, and the Williams and Thacher at Newport, were being given finishing touches before taking to the high seas.

Still another destroyer, traveling alone, passed eastward through the Cape Cod Canal during the night, and was believed heading directly for a Canadian port.

Three destroyers, the Branch, Hunt and Satterlee, are due today at Charlestown Navy Yard from Philadelphia, and will leave here early next week for Canada.

Despite Navy silence it is believed that several other vessels are sailing directly to Canada from other ports along the Atlantic and will not stop at Boston, in keeping with a hope expressed in official quarters in Washington that as many destroyers as possible be in Canadian hands before the weekend.

Coffee Rationing Starts in France

VICHY, France, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Petain government added coffee to the list of rationed foods today for residents of unoccupied France.

Other products already rationed include sugar, rice, soap, lard, spaghetti and macaroni.

T. R.'s Son Denounces Ship Deal

President Roosevelt's method of swapping American destroyers for British naval bases was branded as "scandalous" by Col. Theodore Roosevelt during a brief stopover in Boston.

Col. Roosevelt, headed for Maine to stump for Wendell L. Willkie, said:

"Acquisition of the British bases is an excellent plan of national defense, but the manner in which it was carried out was scandalous. Congress should have been consulted. Instead, 'Charlie McCarthy' Jackson (Atty. Gen. Robert H. Jackson) rendered a decision that congressional approval was unnecessary. The law is as clear as crystal and Jackson's decision avoided the law."

Shakeup in British Cabinet Predicted

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Talk was heard in political circles today that there would be a cabinet reorganization with a three-way shuffle after Parliament's recess ends Sept. 17—with War Secretary Anthony Eden becoming supply minister, Minister of Supply Herbert Morrison taking over the information ministry and Minister of Information Duff Cooper the war office.

HOUSE PONDERING SWISS ARMS PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Strong interest continued to be shown in Congress today in the appeal of William Randolph Hearst that the democratic Swiss system of military training for a citizens' army be substituted for the large standing army raised by conscription provided for in the pending Burke-Wadsworth bill.

The motion which will be offered at the proper time to recommit the bill to the committee on military affairs, which will be the final action on the measure preceding the roll call vote on the adoption of the bill, was tentatively drawn today.

SUBSTITUTE BILL

It contains a clause in accord with the strong recommendation made by Mr. Hearst in his "In the News" column of Wednesday. If adopted in its present form the motion would direct the military affairs committee to strike out everything in the pending bill after the enacting clause and report the bill back to the House with a plan based on the salient features of the Swiss system as a substitute for conscription.

Rep. Carl Hinshaw of California, who has been ill, came to the House to make a last minute appeal for rejection of conscription and substitution of the Swiss system. He said:

"While I do not concede that we need such a large army as that presently proposed, yet if such be the case, then in my judgment the proper way to accomplish an adequate defense posture at this time would be to call into active training service every man physically fit, without exception, in the age group say 18 to 22, giving the option to those still completing their education, as to which year out of the next three years they would choose to take this training.

"I would then enlist in the reserve, through the voluntary system, all of the necessary older personnel for completing the various service grades. Many thousands of these will have already served a period of enlistment in the armed forces of the United States and will be qualified for non-commissioned and commissioned grades.

"I am in favor of the Vinson substitute for the Smith or Overton-Russell amendments, as I am very loath to conscript industry in time of peace. That must be a last resort in our country and not an intermediate step."

Republicans Demand F. D. Tell Secrets in Ship-Base Swap

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (INS)—Congressional foes of President Roosevelt's foreign policies today called loudly on the administration to make public at once details of the secret negotiations which led to the trade of 50 destroyers for naval bases on British possessions in this hemisphere.

At the same time, however, Democratic leaders staunchly defended Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that these details would not be given to the public for 10 years—under the State Department's traditional rule that foreign negotiations be kept secret until they become "history."

BLASTED BY FISH

Demanding the diplomatic conversations between this country and England be publicized, Rep. Fish (R.), New York, leading House isolationist, charged "the whole thing was a rotten, high-handed dictatorial disregard of American principles.

"If the President can give away 50 ships he can give away the whole navy," Fish declared. "The people have a right to know just how this all came about."

Sen. Nye (R.) of North Dakota, isolationist leader in the upper house, said he would bet "it won't take 10 years for the game the President is playing to become known generally."

LEAPS TOWARD WAR

The North Dakotan said: "The people will be satisfied with nothing less than a complete unfolding of these methods short of war which have now become leaps and bounds towards war."

Rep. Marcantonio (A.-L.) New York, likened the President's stand to that of European dictatorships.

"In Germany they have a system, too, that the people aren't told anything until Hitler wants them to know," he declared.

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R.) of Massachusetts, a member of the foreign affairs committee, and Rep. Maas of Minn., ranking Republican on the House naval affairs committee, both demanded that "at least the major part" of the negotiations be made public.

Japanese Warn U. S. Hands Off

TOKYO, Sept. 7 (INS)—The Japanese press today published stern warnings to the United States and Great Britain that Anglo-American co-operation in the Far East is "unwelcome" to Japan.

The newspaper Asahi Shimbun warned against any "extension of Anglo-American co-operation in the Pacific or the crystallization of such co-operation into pressure against Japan's action in establishing a great new East Asiatic sphere for the common prosperity of the Asiatic peoples."

This warning followed disclosure both the United States and Britain had made diplomatic representations to Japan against disturbance of the status quo in French Indo China. Japan has been seeking to extend its control of that French colonial position since the defeat of France by Germany.

Warning the southwestern Pacific situation will grow more tense if the United States and Britain pursue a "mistaken interventionist policy" was issued by the Kokumin Shimbun.

French Move In Indo-China

VICHY, France, Sept. 7 (AP)—Confronted by so-called British-inspired rebellion in French Africa and a Chinese border attack in troubled Indo-China, the newly reorganized Petain government has taken strong measures to keep the French empire from fragmentation.

Frontier vigilance was redoubled in Indo-China and measures taken "to face any eventuality" after Chinese troops crossed the frontier two days ago and clashed with French colonial forces. The Chinese were repulsed after a sharp engagement which left French losses at one dead and 10 wounded.

The Petain government has commissioned Gen. Maxime Weygand, former allied Generalissimo, to go to Africa with broad powers to "assure the defense and security," of the French empire.

Soviet Purger Gets High Post

MOSCOW, Sept. 7 (AP)—Andrey Y. Vishinsky, the state's prosecutor in the 1938 "Trotskyite" purge trial, became vice-commissar of foreign affairs today in one of a series of government appointments.

A new commissariat of state control was created and placed under Lev Mekhlis, former chief of the political department of the Red army.

Vishinsky, 57, former professor and rector at Moscow University and a judge before he became prosecutor, was assigned to assist Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff at the foreign office.

Knox Sees Nazi Trade as Peril

HONOLULU, Sept. 7 (AP)—Secretary Knox, here to inspect Hawaii's defenses, said today the government was getting the "greatest co-operation" from industry and labor in preparing for national defense.

Knox, arriving in a naval bomber planned to inspect Hawaiian defense today, H' said the fifth column is serious both in continental United States and in Hawaii, but adequate and thoro gh steps are being taken to meet it.

Should Great Britain fall before Germany, Secretary Knox ventured the opinion that Adolf Hitler would not attempt to move directly against America but would first try economic and political penetration—which he said the United States couldn't afford to permit.

Theater Guild's Season Plans

Announcing the Helen Hayes-Maurice Evans co-starring theatrical event, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," as their first offering of the season, the Theater Guild and American Theater Society promise Flora Robson in the Gilbert Miller production, "Ladies in Retirement," for later in the season.

As usual six plays will be presented in the series. The remaining four will be selected from the following, and from interesting presentations of other recognized producers.

"Turn Again Home," a dramatic play by Morley Callaghan, famous Canadian short story writer, novelist and author of "They Shall Inherit the Earth," "Such is My Beloved," and "More Joy in Heaven."—"First Stop to Heaven," a comedy of New York life by Norman Rosten, whose poetic drama "This Proud Pilgrimage" was produced in New York City this summer.

"Marie-Adelaide," a chronicle of the late Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, by Isabel Leighton, well known biographer and author of a series of books, magazine articles and stories, and Bertram Bloch, author of "Glory Halleluja," and other plays.

"Limbo," a comedy of manners by Edith Garber and Toby Sagalyn. —"Battle of Angels," an American drama by Tennessee Williams, a newcomer in the theater, which deals stirringly with a situation in contemporary life.

The subscription office is now open at the Colonial building, Room 738, where further information may be obtained.

Gayety Season Off to Gay Start

Successfully launched on its 1940-41 stage season, the Gayety management today is congratulating itself on its first Friday midnight show sellout last night.

For this four-alarm event, Hawaii's Princess Aloha reigned as the spotlighted attraction. She is an exotic appearing creature, and her dances are no less intriguing than her striking appearance.

Sharing top billing with this hula belle is Hazel Walker, whose Oriental dance creations are daring and beautiful.

Other lovelies in the cast are Lillian Harrison, Lucille Raye, and Boston's own personality girl, Nora Ford.

For laughs, there are Billy "Bumps" Mack, with a satchel full of new gags; "Hello Jake" Fields, Frankie Lee, Bob Rogers and Ray Goodman.

Vaudeville is handsomely represented and the chorus is the snappiest to date. Chuck Gregory staged the entire production and is getting bows for it aplenty.

Two screen features and a varied assortment of shorts make up the other half of the program.

There are three shows daily at the Gayety — at 12 m., 3 and 8:30 p. m.—and a special midnight shambles every Friday night, starting at 11:30 p. m., all orchestra seats reserved.

New Programs

"Mortal Storm," exciting film version of Phyllis Bottome's best-selling novel picturing the growth of Nazism and co-starring Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart, and "Irene," with Anna Neagle, Ray Milland and Roland Young, are to been seen on Tremont screen, starting tomorrow and through Wednesday.

• • •

Bijou's top features for tomorrow will be "Pinocchio," the Walt Disney feature-length cartoon. On the same bill will be "Light of the Western Stars," with Victor Jory, Jo Ann Sayers and Noah Beery, Jr.

• • •

For the next three days, Medford's Square Theater will show "Broadway Melodies of 1940," with Eleanor Powell, Fred Astaire and George Murphy, and "Alleghany Uprising," with Claire Trevor and John Wayne.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted film-land authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

HELEN CRAIG is featured in "Johnny Belinda," new Elmer Harris play opening Monday night at the Wilbur.

Beacon Holds Model's Film

Held for a third week at the Beacon is "Secrets of a Model," described as a "frank portrayal of a working girl's struggle for life and love."

Sharon Lee, shapely and vivacious, is the star model in this spicy and exciting drama with a Hollywood background. Harold Daniels has the role of the rich playboy who sets his own pace and makes his own rules. For a change the villain is killed by a car and not by a shot fired by some outraged lady or gent. Bobby Watson appears as the artist who keeps the beauties on parade.

Sharing the studio limelight with the Lee girl are Phyllis Barry and Grace Lenard.

Marie Cord Wins Globe Patrons

It was indeed a happy landing for a capacity house of Globe patrons at yesterday's opening show when delectable Marie Cord, pulling the rip-cord of her parachute, landed in the footlight trenches.

Miss Cord is by way of becoming one of the most popular burlesque beauties ever to break boxoffice records at this well-patronized house of burlesque.

Nor is she, featured as "Gypsy Rose Lee's double," without rivals in the week's touring aggregations of 65 glorified burlesquers. Such burlesque queens as Rita DeVere, Bone Bonne, alleged to hail from south of the border, Paris' late lamented Montmarte and Hawaii respectively.

Manny King, in charge of the comedy department, was boisterously received, as were his able assistants, Megg Lexing, Harry Ryan, Paul West and others.

Rounding out the bill are such vaudeville favorites as the Seven Melody Singers, Moore and Anita, Paige, Dodge and Paige, Alpha and Omega and the "Sensational Salina."

Tomorrow night, starting at 12:01 a. m., there will be another "owl" show with added attractions culled from local night club and radio programs.

U. S. Air Survey Film

South Station Theater's new featured film is "Young America Flies," a survey of the work of the Civilian Aeronautics Authority, featuring Jean Parker and Donald Woods as young air aspirants.

Love Child Held Slaying Motive

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 7—Frank Pedro, young husband and father, was held without bail here today, charged with the lovers' lane slaying of 22-year-old Irene Perry, whose trussed up, garroted body was found a month ago in a patch of Dartmouth woodland.

After Pedro had waived examination in Third District Court, Dist.-Atty. William C. Crossley revealed for the first time the motive that inspired the crime, according to the state.

Pedro killed the Perry girl and hid her body because he believed himself the father of her unborn child, Crossley charged. He said Pedro feared exposure of his association with the girl because of being a married man and having a 10-months'-old baby of his own.

Funeral Planned For Robert Baker

Funeral services were being arranged today for Robert P. Baker, noted sculptor, formerly of Boston and more recently of Woods Hole, who died at Hyannis after a short illness.

He has received medals for portraiture and sculpture awarded by Royal Academy of Arts at London and many other awards and scholarships. A bachelor, he leaves two sisters in England, and a brother of New York City.

F.D. In Hyde Park For Peace Services

HYDE P., RK, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt arrived at his 1200-acre estate today for a few days' rest and a bit of work that can be handled away from Washington. An annual clambake at Sec. Morgenthau's country home in nearby Wiccopee was on Mr. Roosevelt's schedule late today.

Tomorrow, the day he set aside for the nation to pray for lasting world peace, he will attend services at St. James Episcopal Church.

Pantooset Year Round Home Site

A homelike community for summer and winter residences is being presented at Pantooset Terrace, situated in Hanover, 15 miles from Quincy.

These practical and modern homes are being carefully built under the guidance of Francis H. Arnold and Alvin R. Reid. Both of these real estate men are well known and highly respected by the residents of the South Shore.

Hanover is replete with history, dating back to the first ship to go around the world with the American flag proudly flying from its mast. This ship was built in Hanover, and the anchors of the U. S. S. Constitution were forged here also.

Pantooset, on the North river, is a beautiful spot and boasts some excellent fishing. All betterments are available, including lights, gas, water and sewerage. The houses are all well built, and the underlying thought is that Pantooset is a growing home community.

500 FHA Homes On Grew Estate

The FHA development of low cost homes promised for Boston has become a reality, with production well under way toward the construction of 500 homes on the property known as the old Grew estate, adjoining the George Wright municipal golf course, 200 West st., Hyde Park. To date more than 60 of these homes have been sold, with 50 more to be completed by Christmas.

It is difficult to realize that such record-breaking sales could be achieved in such a short space of time, but to hear Mr. K. V. Wolsey explain it, the success of his Hazelwood Homes development is a more or less natural outcome.

"Consider for a moment," said Mr. Wolsey, "the low cost of these homes is first made possible by large-scale production with the distinct advantages of quantity buying. Then there is the added inducement of buying a home fully equipped and with everything paid for. And of great importance, the delightful location is just what the people of Boston have been looking for. These are a few of the reasons why home seekers have found Hazelwood Homes to their liking."

CORNER WINDOWS AID WALL SPACE

Corner windows often may be used effectively to obtain wall space in small rooms, FHA officials advise.

Where windows of the usual type are used, they should not be placed too near the exterior corners, as this has the effect of making the structure appear weak at the corners

ONE OF MANY FAST SELLING HOMES AT PROSPECT HILL

Weymouth's Prospect Hill Popular Site For Homes

Opened late in July, Prospect Hill, on the North Weymouth Shore, is growing into a sizable community of year-round homes with 14 houses completed—10 sold and 16 more in various stages of construction.

With more than 350 homesites available and the same crew of skilled workmen working all year round, Prospect Hill will undoubtedly prove one of the fastest growing home communities around Boston.

Very attractive little New England Colonial houses, at prices ranging from $3750 to $4990, are being built, and the builders are asking for a modest down payment with carrying charges of as little as $28.11 monthly, or less than $1.00 a day.

Prospect Hill is a carefully planned development situated only eight minutes from the Fore River shipyard and 30 minutes from Boston.

The guiding head there is Alfred D. Cole, of White Plains, N. Y., a realtor of considerable importance, he having had a great deal of experience in an advisory capacity.

Mr. Cole has employed only the best, qualified persons to work with purchasers of homes, many of which have been bought directly from the architects' portfolio.

Home At Cost of Outing

Nestled in the rustic splendor of old New England, Attitash Lake Shores offers the lover of beauty and quaint New England the added advantages of comfort and ownership at very little cost.

Easy to get to, Attitash Lake Shores is situated off route 110, north of Haverhill. Coming from Boston on route 1, at Topsfield make left turn onto route 97 to Haverhill and then go north. An easy landmark to remember is Raymond's Restaurant on route 110.

Nowhere else can one find an ideal retreat, surrounded by hills comparable with those of the White Mountains, yet situated so close for easy accessibility. The country bordering Attitash Lake Shores always has been considered one of the most healthful of locations in New England. It is only this recent development of Attitash Lake Shore that makes available summer cottage ownership for the cost of an ordinary vacation.

NEW EDEN

The high elevation of this summer paradise offers a lifetime of healthful pleasure. One of the most important factors about Attitash Lake Shores is the reasonable price of the cottages and the cottage sites. As the developers say, "When we are able to point out that our down payment or any cottage, if placed beside the amount of money it would take for a family to enjoy a two weeks' vacation at any summer resort, compares very favorably and in some cases is even less, prospective buyers readily see the advantage."

It is particularly effective when they realize that this down payment is going out, not just on a summer's vacation, but toward a permanent summer home that may be enjoyed every summer.

Years of experience are in back of the developers of Attitash Lake Shores and this, coupled with the natural beauty and high elevation of this truly New England health center, makes it the new Eden of summer developments.

In discussing the investment possibilities at Attitash Lake Shores, William E. Schluemeyer, president of the development organization, said:

"Attitash Lake Shores must be regarded as an investment when you consider the surrounding countryside, and surely nothing like it is available at anywhere near the price we are asking for sites or cottages."

Now that better business conditions are in prospect as a result of the defense program, which will continue for 10 years at least and put into employment many thousands now unemployed, it is certain that the next few years will see an enhancement of land values, which is always the first to feel the boom.

As usual, all buyers and prospective buyers are anxious to make arrangements for construction on their land.

The many years of experience in back of the developers in surveying, construction and every other phase of effort that goes into building really good summer home sites, guarantees the prospective purchaser the use of the best knowledge available in this type of specialty.

By BETTY ALDEN

THE NAME of Dan Cupid is not included on the lists of our perennial 10 million unemployed . . . his job goes on forever . . . Today he no sooner crosses off on his ledger the names of a dozen or more Boston couples who are being married, than he adds the latest subjects of his well aimed darts . . .

First entries on his pages are Rosamond Whitney of Milton and Betty Brooks of Concord . . . Rosamond, daughter of Mrs. James Russell and Mr. Byam Whitney of Milton, is engaged to Robert W. Swift, Jr., of Milton and Bristol, Pa. . . . A debutante of the 1936-37 season, she is active in Junior League and Vincent Club affairs and is a sister of Mrs. Standish Van Voorhis (Jane Whitney) . . .

James A. Ford, son of Mrs. Tyler Ford of Cambridge, is the lucky young man who has captured Betty Brooks' heart and hand . . . She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Brooks of Concord who are giving a party tomorrow afternoon in honor of the engagement . . . Betty attended Winsor School and Concord Academy, and her fiance is a Harvard '37 graduate . . . The wedding will take place late this fall . . .

Henderson-Fuller

ONE OF THE most important weddings on today's schedule is that of Mary Fuller, daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, to Robert Lloyd Henderson, son of Mrs. James D. Henderson of Winchester . . .

Monsignor Richard Neagle performed the ceremony at 11 this morning in the library of the Fuller's beautiful seaside home at Little Boar's Head . . . Only members of the families witnessed the ceremony but 500 additional guests attended the wedding breakfast served under a marquee erected on the spacious lawns of Runnymede . . .

Mary's gown of ivory satin was fashioned on princess lines with long tight sleeves and a low square neckline outlined with organdie ruching . . . Her tulle veil fell from a pleated tulle halo and she carried an old family prayer book with orchid markers . . .

Lydia Fuller, the maid of honor, was gowned in hydrangea blue velvet with a matching velvet bonnet and carried a muff of blue delphinium . . . The bridesmaids' gowns, fashioned of the same shade of blue, had full taffeta skirts, velvet bodices and bonnets and they also carried muffs of delphinium . . .

The bridesmaids were Hope Halsey, cousin of the bride, Melvina Schulz of New York, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Jr., of Cambridge and Mrs. Charles d'Autremont of Lexington . . .

Wedding Party Honored at Cabana Party

LAST EVENING Mary and Bob were guests at a cabana party on the beach at Mrs. Fuller Halsey's summer home . . . Other pre-wedding festivities have been given by Mrs. James Sanders of Rye, N. H., Mrs. Edwin H. Armstrong of New York, Lydia Fuller and Mrs. A. T. Fuller, Jr. . . .

Frederick G. Hall, 2nd, of New York, was best man for Mr. Henderson and the ushers were Alvan T., Jr. and Peter Fuller, brothers of the bride; Dudley Talbot of Weston and George T. Bottomley of Boston . . .

Mary graduated from May-Brimmer and Westover schools, made her debut at a tea dance at her parents' Beacon st. home in the autumn of 1934, and has spent several years studying art and dramatics in London and Rome . . .

Penelope Hill Weds in Trinity Church

PENELOPE HILL of Jamaica Plain, is having her twin sister, Nancy, as maid of honor, and little John Dwinell as flower girl, at her marriage in Trinity Church this afternoon to John Dwinell of Winchester . . . The bride, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Webb Hill, is a graduate of Winsor School and member of the Junior League . . . Mr. Dwinell attended Middlesex School and graduated from Harvard in 1938 . . .

Penelope's gown of cream satin is made with a sweetheart neckline edged with rose point lace . . . She is wearing an heirloom rose point veil and carrying white orchids and stephanotis . . .

Nancy is wearing rose taffeta with a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves, a small hat of deep red velvet and carrying red dahlias . . .

THE PARADE of autumn deb parties starts off with flying colors at Ann Coulson's dance at the Eastern Yacht Club tonight. The gay whirl ahead requires a wardrobe full of alluring evening gowns such as these modelled by Ann Folsom, left, of Hingham, and Cornelia Menard of Cohasset, at a recent fashion show. Ann is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Folsom and Cornelia, a post deb, is the daughter of Mrs. Ralph Menard.

Junior League Girl Weds

Miss Sallie Chandler Smith of Fitchburg, member of the Boston Junior League and Vincent Club, is being married this afternoon to Richard Storm, of New York City, in Christ Church, Fitchburg.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan K. Smith made her debut in Boston last winter and is having several of her sister debs of that season in her bridal party. Given in marriage by her father, she is wearing a gown of white satin with a white tulle veil.

The attendants, whose gowns are of dusty pink with hats of deep rose velvet, are Mrs. Morgan K. Butler, Jr., of Concord, Jean B. Smith, sister of the bride, Harriet Watson of Wellesley Hills, Kathleen Crocker, of Fitchburg, Cynthia Sargent of Cambridge and Joan Sanger of New York City.

WEDS BELMONT MAN

Miss Henrietta Wood Briggs, daughter of Mrs. Glenwood Flory of New York, is being married this afternoon to Gilbert Russell Payson, Harvard '21, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert R. Payson of Belmont.

The small family wedding is taking place in Christ Church, Cambridge, with the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn officiating.

Ann Ayer Marries

A large and fashionable gathering of North Shore society is witnessing the marriage of Anne Proctor Ayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer of Wenham, to Edward Ford MacNichol, Jr., in Wenham's First Congregational Church this afternoon.

Given in marriage by her father, Anne is wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and rose point lace, with a tulle veil fastened to a coronet of orange blossoms.

There's a hint of autumn coloring in the costumes Anne has chosen for her nine attendants, for with their full skirted gowns of eggshell satin they are wearing small turbans of bois de rose button chrysanthemums and carrying muffs of the same autumn flowers.

The attendants are Anne Proctor Moody of San Francisco, Virginia Pennoyer of Long Island, Hilda Rice Ayer, Jr., sister of the bride, Marileeds Haerd, Emily Rice, Anne H. Burnett and Mrs. Richard Pentecost of the North Shore, Margaret Riggs of Woodstock, Vt., and Mrs. Frederick B Chapman (Eleanor Coolidge) of New York.

Former Dorothy Hatch Weds

Grady-Hatch Ceremony

One of early autumn's outstanding weddings took place this morning in St. Clement's Church, where Dorothy Hatch, daughter of Mrs. Joseph B. Hatch, of Waltham, became the bride of Robert Burns Grady, son of Mrs. Michael J. Grady of Marlboro.

Dr. Francis Shea, of St. John's Seminary, officiated and a reception followed at the Copley-Plaza's Sheraton Room.

The bride, a graduate of Emmanuel College and Boston University, wore ivory satin adorned with Alencon lace, a voluminous tulle bridal veil draped from a Juliet cap, and carried a bouquet of orchids.

Marguerite Downey, of Cambridge, served as honor maid, and Mrs. E. Wallace Pyne, was matron of honor for her cousin. The bridesmaid group included Dorothy Kohl, Waltham; Mrs. George L. Keleher, Belmont; Mary McCarthy, Brookline, Katharine Dooley, Boston; Marie Barry, Cambridge; and Mary Frances Murphy, Marlboro.

Alison Kimpton in Ceremony

Wearing a gown of ivory satin with a lace collar, and a veil of rose point lace, Miss Alison Reid Kimpton is being married this afternoon to John E. Phemister, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Phemister of Hanover, Mass.

The wedding in the First Parish Church, Norwell, is followed by a reception at Meadowlarks, summer home of the bride's father, Dr Arthur R. Kimpton of Beacon st.

The bride's sisters, Elizabeth Kimpton, Mrs. Charles Bulfinch, and Mrs. Francis X. Sommer, Jr., of Boston, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Leonard Ferguson of Storrs, Ct., are the attendants. Their gowns of ivory chiffon are enhanced by headdresses of blue delphinium and bouquets of flame gladiolas and blue delphinium.

Young Robert David Phemister, son of the best man and nephew of the groom is the ring bearer. Robert T. Phemister of Framingham is the best man.

Strange Case of F. D. and Garner

By CARLISLE BARGERON

(Assigned by Republican National Committee)

With this country moving through one of the most critical periods of its history, there is the rather amazing situation of the President and the Vice-President of the United States being 1000 miles apart because it is with difficulty that they speak civilly to one another.

Jack Garner, one of the best advisers Mr. Roosevelt ever had, has retired to Uvalde, Tex., because his advice is never accepted, and because his once beloved Chief is seeking a dangerous grab of power. Not only is the rugged Texan convinced that Mr. Roosevelt is killing the Democratic party but that he is leading the country along a ruinous course.

Roosevelt

Garner

There is no parallel for this situation in history.

Our Vice-Presidents are high in the party councils and no man has ever more ably served another than Jack Garner served his Chief. The most popular and able parliamentarian in Congress, he headed the group of Democratic leaders that put through the New Deal program, its every major accomplishment. Make no mistake about it, without his support it would have been a New Deal in name only.

With the wave of sit-down strikes and the attack on the Supreme Court in 1937, he became disturbed. However, he did not complain about the attack on the Court, though he subsequently counselled moderation when he saw it was tearing the Democratic party apart. About the sit-down strikes, which threw millions again out of work and, along with the general revolutionary atmosphere, brought on the brutal "recession," he did complain and bitterly.

But he remained loyal to "the Chief." He prevented incipient uprisings time and again. Perhaps, the greatest service he rendered to "the Chief" was in the session of 1939 when, after the "purge" attempts, the Conservative Democrats returned to Washington determined, as they put it, to put Mr. Roosevelt's feet on the ground. Their first plan was to investigate Harry Hopkins and his happy blending of relief funds and politics.

He Was 'A Good Soldier

It would have been the end of Harry's career and it would have probably wrecked the New Deal. It would have revealed, for one thing, how the New Dealers used relief funds to play one labor organization against another.

It should throw some light on the "spontaneous draft" at Chicago to know that these Senators were convinced this far back that Mr. Roosevelt was running for a third term. Garner couldn't believe it. Not believing it, he urged the Senators to keep calm. "The Chief" made mistakes, he counselled, but he was convinced the situation would be straightened out. It was then that he unwittingly became a candidate for President. To reassure the doubting Senators he gave them his word that in the event Mr. Roosevelt did run, he would oppose him. So the Senators went along at a time when they probably could have nipped Mr. Roosevelt's ambitions in the bud. Whereupon Garner worked out the plan to get rid of the Hopkins embarrassment. This plan was to make Harry Secretary of Commerce. Thus the investigation was avoided.

True to his word, when he, himself, realized Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate, Garner entered the race—in the full knowledge that he had no chance against the organizations built up by the Bureaucrats and Boss Flynn, Boss Hague, Boss Kelly, Boss Crump et al. Now we see him keeping his counsels at his Uvalde home, a man more in sorrow than any other mood—a man who has served his country some 40 years.

THE DANCING DERVISHES

The newspapers carried revealing stories of the cut-ups in the Senate when Mr. Willkie demanded to know if Mr. Roosevelt approved the property confiscation amendment to the military service bill. But they didn't mention Pat Harrison as participating in the gleeful antics, or Carter Glass, or Harry Byrd, or Tydings, or Adams, or George—none of those Democrats who have constituted the backbone of the Democratic party these many years.

The stories did relate what a good time Sen. "Shay" Minton had. Being a fellow Indianian, Mr. Willkie must have got a kick out of this. Because it marks Shay's return to the role of the New Deal's hatchet man. And Shay would hardly take up the role again had Mr. Roosevelt not assuaged his feelings.

Shay's as Funny 'As Can Be

Shay is one of those fellows who doesn't expect to serve but one term in the Senate. He therefore works out his future by doing the Administration's dirty work with a view to being appointed to a federal judgeship. Well, for several months Shay has been complaining to his colleagues that he was wondering just when the judgeship would come along. He was getting fed up doing the dirty work with nothing in sight, he declared, and he lapsed into a silence on the Senate floor. His presentation the other day marked the recovery of his caustic tongue.

Roosevelt Builds Mighty Defense

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

The security of the nation for a century to come has been assured by the wise and courageous policies pursued by President Roosevelt.

While battling armies and airplanes transform Europe into a shambles, he has pushed the front line of defense far out into the Atlantic, built up the finest Navy in the world, revitalized the Army, and laid the basis for an air fleet equal to any on earth.

Anti-aircraft gun in action.

Time is of the essence and keeping this thought in mind, the Chief Executive has worked with lightning speed. He has pursued the single objective of converting this continent into an impregnable island before potential enemies are in a position to strike a lethal blow. That he has won the grudging approval of his critics is the surest testimony to the wisdom of his policies.

The agreement with Great Britain whereby this country has acquired the right to build eight new naval bases along the Atlantic, may well be, as the President said in his report to Congress, the most important action for re-enforcement of national defense since the Louisiana Purchase. A string of fortified islands, harboring fighting ships and fighting planes, will make the invasion of the mainland too costly for even the hardiest foe to attempt.

The opinion was expressed by many sincerely patriotic citizens that the coincidence of a Presidential election and the emergency brought on by the world-wide sweep of conquering dictators would prove a severe, and perhaps fatal, handicap to the upbuilding of Uncle Sam's defenses. Fear was expressed that Presidential candidates, about to face the electorate, would substitute caution and timidity when boldness and brave action were vitally needed. The deadly do-nothing policies of the politicians in France and the other conquered nations were too recent to be overlooked or forgotten.

THE BOLD COURSE

Yet, whatever else may be said about the President, no one may honestly charge that he has compromised with his own convictions, that he has gambled with the country's security to advance his own political interests. Far from taking the lines of "least resistance," he has followed the course best suited to make this nation secure against attack. He has not yielded to the public clamor of a minority or taken the "popular side" to avoid the chance of losing votes.

At the commencement of hostilities, the President faced the grave choice of adhering to the age-old tradition of strict neutrality or of providing material assistance short of war to those countries whose ideals more nearly approached our own. The question involved, not what was best for the Allies, but what was best for the United States of America. He took the view that whatever impeded the onward march of democracy's foes was a gain in time and strength for America. His foresight has borne excellent results. England's courageous battle against the Nazi air armada has given this country at least another winter in which to prepare. The solemn pledge of the British government that the English fleet will not be scuttled or surrendered has made the position of this country doubly strong.

Misled by hostile propaganda, a few people complain that President Roosevelt started his defense measures "too late." On the contrary, history will show that he was far ahead of his contemporaries in awakening the public to the menace of what was taking place in Europe. Two years ago, with the approval of the Chief Executive, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson advocated the creation of an air fleet of 25000 planes. He was denounced as a jingoist and a war monger. As late as last fall, former President Herbert Hoover was assuring the public that there was no danger of a Hitler victory.

Wendell Willkie has given his cautious approval to the President's action in obtaining the lease of naval bases from Britain. Naturally, as a rival candidate, he thinks the same result might have been accomplished in some other way. Questions of method, of course, are always debatable. Jefferson was severely criticized because of the Louisiana Purchase, and a few hot-heads in the Congress of that day even talked of impeaching him.

Some of Seven Children Find Joy at Their New Home in Dedham

Life Takes On Rosy Hue For Hales

Life, as yet, isn't so beautiful for the hapless Hale family, but seven young voices echoed pa's and ma's sentiments today that life in a six-room-and-bath apartment is quite an improvement on roughing it in "Hurricane House."

"And if only the kids down the street will stop yelling 'Swiss Family Robinson' at us," put in 10-year-old Natalie, "maybe we'll start living like other people again."

Natalie next to her harassed young mother was the busiest person in the new Hale home in the Readville Manor section of Dedham.

There was work to be done! There were battered Hale possessions arriving from a Hyde Park garage where they had been stored while the Hale family lived in a three-sided shack in the Peterboro Park section.

These are the Hales who were exiled from their Hyde Park home some weeks ago and had to spend nearly a fortnight sleeping on bare ground in an open shack.

FOOD HEALTH

The father, Joseph J. Hale, World War veteran, who served in the United States Navy from July 1918 to July 1920 had been in poor health for months.

"If I can only get a job now," he said, "everything may be all right again. We were lucky the state guaranteed the Town of Dedham it would make good what they're giving us. Darn, it's good to be in a home again."

Dedham is not only furnishing the Hales' new home but 37 a week in food. Many persons, attracted by the tragedy of the family, are also forwarding aid. Mrs. Hale said:

"I don't care how hard we work, I don't care what happens," the mother of the house said "There's only one thing that I do care about—I won't be separated from the children.

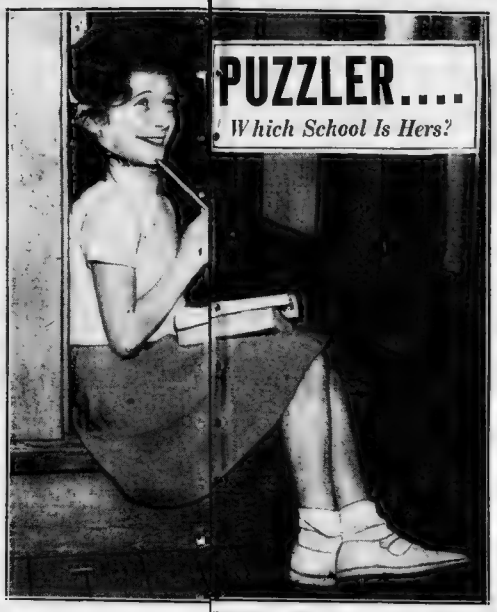
"I'm thankful everyone is so good to us . . . But they can't take the babies away."

FULLER TOO RICH

Phyllis, who is 9, didn't know what was worrying mother. Instead she was busy taking care of 2-year-old Mary Young, Joe is 11 then, for it was great fun to have one of the friend of a friend.

"Everything is going to work out all right now, I hope," Natalie said. "We're in a house again.

"Just ask them to stop that 'Swiss Family Robinson' stuff, will you?"



PUZZLER....

Which School Is Hers?

Mary Cardinali's Feet Are in Cambridge, Her Head in Somerville

MARY FINDS PLACE IN SUN

Well, after all these years, it's finally tled and 9-year-old Mary Cardinali of Harv Cambridge, is officially a student in the ville public schools.

No one can argue about Mary's domic any more.

Wherever a person sleeps, says the la that is the person's legal residence, Mary's from steps are in Cambridge, but today a cen veyor had ruled irrevocably that her h is in Somerville.

What finally brought matters to a con was Mary's latest eviction—from the School in Somerville.

The little girl had been to school in Cambridge because Somerville said she lived in the former city. She had been to school in Somerville because Cambridge officials said she lived in Somerville.

She had been to the Carr school in Somerville; to the Agassiz school, Cambridge, then to Durrell school, Somerville; back once more to the Carr school, out of it. A try at the Knapp school, Somerville; out of that.

It looked again like a departure from the Morse school, but that's where Mary's going now.

BRITISH HOSPITAL BLASTED...

Bomb Scores Direct Hit in Nazi Air Raid

Hospital Bombed—This photo, radioed from London, was taken a short while after German bombers passed over a town in southeast England yesterday in the biggest and most damaging of the raids on Britain. Littered with rubble and now empty of their patients, these hospital beds are mute symbols of war's horror. The patients lay helpless while the missile of death shrieked down . . . some died in the thunderous chaos that followed . . . others knew suddenly the agony of torn flesh.

For College Gals—Filmland's Mary Howard and Ann Merriss show the latest fashion for a day in the mountains . . . something the college girl will feel is a "must." Navy gabardine trousers feature jackets of white water-proof silk. Jockey caps are in colors to harmonize with the mittens.

U. S. TANKS

May Go to Aid Canada

From U. S. Army to Canada—As Yankee Division's National Guard maneuvered with two tanks, U.S. Army was busy collecting tanks of the type above to be sent to Canada for training purposes . . . it is believed as Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, revealed the Army is going to release several hundred World War tanks to Canada. He stressed the fact that negotiations were still underway.

THE United States Army, according to Washington information, is "favorably considering" turning over several hundred of its tanks to Canada for training purposes.

Reading this report, thousands, particularly the thousands who recall recent newspaper photographs and theater newsreels, will ask, "WHAT TANKS?"

TRUCKS POSE AS TANKS IN U. S. ARMY DRILLS
Resourceful Soldiers Carry On Despite Arms Shortage

Pictures like the one above were common a few weeks ago, when Army and National Guard divisions were training at Plattsburg, New York, and other camps.

Because of the scarcity of tanks, soldiers employed ordinary commercial trucks in their maneuvers and labelled the trucks "Tanks," lest anyone inquire concerning the presence of such harmless vehicles in simulated raids and "blitzkriegs."

If the United States has tanks for Canada, why has not the United States tanks for her OWN Army?

And, even more to the point, WHY DOES NOT THE UNITED STATES USE THEM?

The New York Times, concluding an exhaustive survey of American military equipment, is authority for the statement that the United States has 521 light tanks, ONLY 18 MEDIUM TANKS and NO HEAVY TANKS.

Are we deluding our good friend Canada with false promises?

FEMININE FEARS that American-inspired styles would lack the combination of ingenuity and eccentricity that so long characterized importations from Paris were unfounded.

American designs are prepared to go the limit and, if necessary, a considerable distance beyond the limit.

Newest product of the domestic imagination is a hat with an abundance of false hair attached to it.

The Associated Press soberly informs us that:

"If your 'coiffure hat' covers your head, the attached artificial locks in front may be of a contrasting color to that nature gave you, providing a lively variety. A blonde may be a brunette on the street, or vice-versa."

The applause or criticism we cheerfully leave to the ladies. It is their picnic—or funeral.

What disturbs us is a further Associated Press statement which, rather hesitatingly, suggests that men "might be permitted to play around with the idea—if they like."

How truly embarrassing for us to tip our hat in respect to a pretty girl or comely matron and have our hair follow the hat into the air!

SCHOOL TEACHERS, frequently misunderstood and often maligned, are the recipients of an additional bit of abuse.

This time the offender is ironically another school teacher—Dr. Goodwin Watson of Columbia University.

The principal source of America's economic radicals is prolonged schooling—not unemployment, he tells the distinguished American Psychological Association.

Furthermore, as proof that he is right, Dr. Watson summarizes a study of thousands of the nation's employed and unemployed persons and explains:

"Those who carried on into graduate study include ten times as large a proportion of radicals as those who have barely finished the eighth grade."

The criticism is proper as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

Instead of counting the noses of those with warped economic ideas, would it not be wiser to tabulate the schools, colleges, universities and pedagogues that distort and befuddle young minds?

Unless we miss our guess, it is not too much education which is damaging youth.

More likely it is the wrong kind of education imparted by teachers who have degenerated into propagandists for alien "isms" and ideologies.

On The Side

By E. V. DURLING

RECENTLY I said the intelligent, constructive criticism of the husbands of America had caused a return to normalcy in feminine headgear. I was mistaken. The hats are balmier than ever. Some of them look like oversized clamshells; others as if they had been designed by an inebriated Chinese architect and still others look like coffee pots that have been in a traffic accident. Still I don't know why all the current agitation about women's hats being funny looking. They were always pretty silly. One time women wore stuffed birds on their hats. That was the period of the ditty: "You don't know Nellie like I do, said the naughty little bird on Nellie's hat."

"MANY RECEIVE advice; only the wise profit by it," said the late Publilius Syrus. My uncle Al told me a 20-cent cigar was always a better buy than two 10-cent ones. He also said it was always for the best to consider any woman, no matter how dumb she might outwardly appear, was smarter than you. My father said: "If a man is healthy, working at something he likes and is doing a little something to help others, he is a success." My mother said: "Courtesy on a man's part never fails to make a woman think more favorably of him."

I THINK if Jeanette MacDonald would forget her Metropolitan Opera ambitions and condescend to once more play sophisticated young matrons as she did in her films with Maurice Chevalier, she might do a come-back . . . Asked a waitress: "When six women without men are having lunch what do they talk about?" Waitress answered without hesitation: "Their boy friends and hose" . . . British House of Commons is such a small place it is almost tiny. It is 75 feet long, 45 feet wide and 41 feet high.

"COME on, step lively," said the Fifth Ave. bus conductor. "How I wish I could, young man," said the elderly passenger . . . To date I have never seen the Duchess of Windsor. I went to a night club at Juan Les Pins, France, where she was expected to be but she didn't show up. However, the trip was made worth while by my seeing an Englishman dancing the Rumba while smoking a pipe.

MARLENE DIETRICH makes the most effective entrances at Hollywood night clubs, as she usually has three male escorts. One night she had five men with her. This was a sensational entrance. But not quite as sensational as the time she appeared at a night club with only one escort.

AM ASKED to suggest an epitaph for a dog. That is difficult if you don't know the dog. Also, think it better if the dog's master originates an epitaph that comes from the heart and directly applies to his pet. Here is an epitaph I read in the Hyde Park, London, dog cemetery:

In loving memory of Pushkin
My gentle little friend and companion
For eleven years. So sadly missed
Sleep, little one, sleep,
Rest gently thy head
As ever thou didst at my feet
And dream that I am near.

MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Sept. 7—We had a picnic lunch Thursday for the second group of boys from the Woodstock, N. Y., National Youth Administration project.

These boys are learning quarrying, masonry work, stone carving and even the making of their own tools. I did not have a great deal to show them, but out on my porch, they looked with a great deal of interest at the big stone fireplace which I have for broiling.

After a swim and lunch and a visit to the pewter shop, where they were interested in the making of salad bowls and pewter articles, I took them over to see the new library. They were much interested in the stone used in that building.

I hope they enjoyed my lunch as much as I did the one they gave us the day that Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and I visited them.

I INDUCED Mrs. Morgenthau to drive up from Fishkill to be with us yesterday and we talked over various plans, for she and I are to meet in New York City. It is most satisfactory to do anything with her, for she has such a quick grasp of any situation and an esthetic and cultured appreciation of many things which is not given to us all.

There was some little accumulation of mail and a number of things to be gone over and arranged. Christmas shopping must begin and I am glad to say I went over all my lists Thursday and am able to start with a very well planned list of what must be bought in the course of the next few weeks.

You will probably say that it is early to be planning Christmas shopping, but I am rather horrified at not having more laid aside and marked for this busiest of seasons. From now on it is going to be busier and busier.

I write you little about the war because it seems to me that you must feel as I do, that it is hard to free your mind of the news which comes over the radio and which screams at you on the front page of every paper.

The horror grows worse and the feeling that you never know quite what is happening, or may happen, is very hard to bear.

The weight of suffering in the world is so great one can not be happy these days, but at least I think, it is incumbent upon all of us to be grateful for our lot and show it by as much cheerfulness and willingness to give to others, as we possibly can.

JESSEL PROVES LOVE STILL ENDURES

By Leonard Lyons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7—George Jessel, distressed at so many reports that his Lois idyll is terminated, has been escorting his bride to all the public places as visible proof that the romance still endures.

The local representative of a Reno hotel, with complete disregard for these tender displays, phoned the Jessel home. George answered the phone, posed as the butler, and elicited the information that Mrs. Jessel was being offered free accommodations in Reno, in return for her posing for newspaper photos.

"I'll tell Mrs. Jessel about this when she comes in," said George. "She's out—holding up the Union Pacific" . . . "A train robbery?" asked the startled caller . . . "Yes," said George. "Y'know how it is—a young girl with a husband who still can't get that handkerchief off his right hand." . . . "What handkerchief?" Jessel was asked . . . "The one covering the gun," he replied, "when I shot McKinley."

ALAN CAMPBELL and Dorothy Parker listened to a group of film actors describe their homes, and then showed them photos of their farm in Bucks County, Pa. Alan pointed out the swimming pool, the wells, the new roads and all the improvements being made on the property . . . "It all looks very pretty," Norman Foster stated, "but I don't see all the equipment. What kind of heating system do you use in the winter time?" . . . "Oh, that's very simple," Dorothy informed. 'We use the body heat of the field mice."

KAY FRANCIS is starring in a movie called "Little Men," in which young Richard Nichols is featured. Richard who is six years old, recently appeared as Charles Boyer's son in "All This and Heaven Too" . . . The youngster, therefore, has taken a great deal of direction in the studios and gave one indication of its effect upon him. He told Miss Francis: "Dolls are friends" . . . "Dolls are friends?" repeated the star. "What do you mean, Dickie?" . . . The boy explained: "They don't tell you what to do."

WHEN LILY PONS flew to New York, Andre Kostelanetz and Alma Clayburgh went to the airport to see her off. Just before Lily entered the plane Andre gave her some sleeping pills. "Swallow them as soon as the plane takes off," he recommended. "They're a new type—geographic pills—guaranteed to keep you asleep for 15 States" . . . "In that case," said Mme. Clayburgh, mindful of Miss Pons' nerves, "I hope those 15 States are consecutive."

ERROL FLYNN has become almost inured to the suggestions that he leave his wife here and return to England to fight . . . Flynn visited Ciro's a few nights ago and, for the first time in many months, he saw Robert Montgomery—who returned from France recently, after working in the ambulance corps there . . . "Hello, Bob," was Flynn's innocent greeting. "Been away?" . . . Two musicians who toured South America as part of Toscanini's orchestra told of the receptions accorded them in each city—where the greeting officials adhered to the Latin custom of kissing the guest of honor . . . "When the venerable Toscanini kisses," the musicians were asked, "does he use a score?" . . . "No, you know the maestro," they answered. "He does everything from memory."

MORE THAN 150 Hollywood women have organized a sewing circle for the benefit of British soldiers. This group now is at work knitting socks and sewing pajamas for the British wounded . . . Their handiwork has been exemplary—except that one set of pajamas, made by Gladys Cooper, was returned to her with the admonition: "You must remember one thing about men's pajamas. A collar does not belong on the trousers."

SIR CEDRIC HARDWICKE received the customary information-forms for the new edition of the British Who's Who . . . Sir Cedric, some of whose fondest memories are those of the gay moments he spent in Jack White's cafe, supplied all the data required—including the listing of the various clubs to which he still retains membership. He wrote that club-list carefully, listing "Garrick Club, The Players, the Arts Club"—and added, "Club 18."

THE STORY OF THE WEEK undoubtedly is "The Regeneration of Ed Wynn" . . . That Mr. Wynn happens to have what may be a hit on his hands in "Boys and Girls Together" is incidental . . . The background of the story is that Mr. Wynn, born with the talent to make others laugh, had worn huge seams in his face through worry and self-pity and the lack of a laugh on himself.

HIS SON, KEENAN, SAW his father losing his grip, and urged him to return to the theater . . . Lovely Jane Pickens, who lives in the same apartment house in Manhattan as the Wynns, agreed with Keenan . . . So did the famous dancers, Tony and Renee De Marco . . . A co-sympathizer also was Dave Apollon . . . Although Dave recently had kissed farewell to a $30,000 bankroll invested in a nightclub, his troubles were little ones compared to the consuming grief of his friend, The Perfect Fool.

MR. WYNN WAS LITERALLY COAXED back into show-business . . . A cast headed by Ed Wynn, with the De Marcos, Miss Pickens and Dave Apollon in support, need never go begging for backing . . . Joe Schenck, the movie magnate, offered to buy fifty per cent . . . Mr. Apollon, who is a wealthy actor, tried to buy any part of the revue which the comical Ed didn't need for his own use . . . Mr. Wynn decided to be the sole investor, to shoot the works.

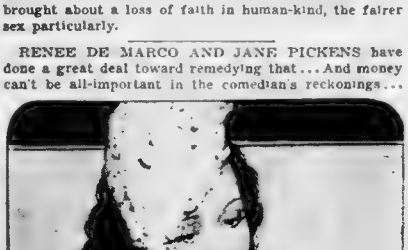
SO HE DID—and the battle was on . . . weeks of rehearsal, the gloomy cuss who once was as blithe a spirit as any in show-business, was babied and cajoled and yessed and chuckled under his sagging chin and kidded into believing that—in spite of four successive foul blows by Fate—he was the luckiest man in the world.

CAME OPENING NIGHT . . . The De Marcos, anxious about the show's star and his ability to squeeze laughs from a first-night audience, forgot all about themselves—and gave the best performance of their illustrious careers . . . Miss Pickens sang as thrillingly as she ever sang in her life . . . The wonderful Apollon outdid himself, too . . . An hour too long, the show was played at such a pitch on opening night that the audience was fascinated and stayed to the end.

WE HAVE NOT SEEN ED WYNN since his inspiring premiere . . . At Micky Alpert's latest Thursday guest night at the Cocoanut Grove, however, Tony De Marco of the great De Marcos, was bubbling like a boy of ten . . . "I tell you, it's wonderful—it's marvelous. You should see the guy. He's laughing . . . I've never been so proud in my life," said Mr. De Marco . . . "You should be proud, Tony," he was interrupted. "They say you and Renee stole the show." . . . "Me? I'm not thinking of me—or us," was the protest. "I'm thinking of Ed Wynn. Ed is laughing again." . . . Of course, Broadway is notoriously sentimental, but the attitude toward Mr. Wynn shown by Mr. De Marco and a few other true friends in what was actually a crisis in his life, is more than a sentimental gesture.

THOSE WHO KNOW ARE INTERPRETING it as a tribute to a man, who in forty years of trouping, has never written or uttered a "blue" line in his career . . . What were the worries that overcame the famous comedian? Nearly a million dollars of Ed's sizeable fortune have taken wings in the past few years . . . But what affected him most were circumstances which brought about a loss of faith in human-kind, the fairer sex particularly.

RENEE DE MARCO AND JANE PICKENS have done a great deal toward remedying that . . . And money can't be all-important in the comedian's reckonings . . .



HAPPY AT WYNN'S SUCCESS

Renee De Marco Helps Put Show Over

Remember he could have hedged at least $75,000 worth—or 6 per cent—of his investment in "Boys and Girls Together," which, by the time it reaches New York, will represent an outlay of $150,000 . . . And what do you suppose has happened? . . . A few hours ago Mr. Wynn turned down $150,000, his estimated total cost of production plus losses on the road . . . For the same fifty per cent of the show.

GARY COOPER WINS SERGT. YORK ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Gary Cooper

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7—Very quietly over the dinner table Jack Warner arranged to borrow Gary Cooper from Samuel Goldwyn for the title role in "Sergeant York." Warners have been eager to get Gary for this biography because he is so very like the tall, lanky York of 20 years ago before age and comfortable diet gave the sergeant added poundage. Jack, however, wanted to be sure that Sergeant York himself, who is now here, was pleased with the idea of Gary.

Gary and York met and in five minutes the World War hero was convinced that Cooper was the only one to play the young York. You can imagine there was a lot of dickering back and forth before Sam parted with his favorite star.

THE RETURNS from "The Sea Hawk" are gratifying enough to Warners to start renewed interest in "The Sea Wolf," the movie in which the late Milton Sills and Hobart Bosworth starred in the silent days. Also the $400,000 worth of stages built for "The Sea Hawk" can be used again. At a hurried conference last week it was decided to star Edward Robinson in "The Sea Wolf" and give Anatole Litvak the directorial assignment. The Jack London story, as I remember it, is full of blood and thunder and suspense and as thrilling as any drama ever filmed. Interesting that three sea stories of the silent days have been taken off the shelves and remade—"The Sea Hawk," already shown in the theaters, "Down to the Sea in Ships," which brought Clara Bow to fame 20 years ago and is now being refilmed by 20th Century-Fox, and now "The Sea Wolf."

I THOUGHT when Leatrice Joy appeared in "First Love" as Deanna Durbin's mother she was launched on a new movie career. Although naturally she is much older than when she used to play Thomas Meighan's leading lady and star in the Cecil B. De Mille romantic dramas, she was excellent in "First Love." However, few producers seem willing to put our former glamour girls into mother roles and Leatrice's renewed career showed signs of beginning and ending with the Durbin film. So it's pleasant news that Scott R. Dunlap of Monogram has given Leatrice the lead in "The Old Swimmin' Hole," with Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran. She'll play Marcia Mae's mother and Robert McGowan will direct her. By the way, wonder what happened to the movie career of Leatrice, Jr., Jack Gilbert's daughter. She was an interesting and attractive youngster, but after one small role nothing more was heard about her.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Couldn't have been more surprised than to see Gloria Dickson and Fere Westmore sitting tete-a-tete at dinner. It looks to me as if there might be a reconciliation. Fere has lost fifty pounds since he and Gloria parted and looks as young as his brother Buddy. Gloria, too, has taken off weight and is much more attractive. Whether or not the two of them will get together remains to be seen, but they have had several visits and telephone calls and they have seven months to make up their minds before the divorce decree becomes final.

They dine together almost every night; Joan Brooks has been adopted by Jerry Wald and Dick Macaulay as their protegee for the Wampas baby star contest.

Horse Sense

By Anthony Rudd

THE HORSE was a bony, dust-shot gray, only five years old, 16 hands high, and carrying a wicked gleam in his rolling eyes. He was livelier than most of the tote-road animals.

He had bitten a chunk of muscle out of the foreman's shoulder. They called him Smoke, and labeled him bad medicine. Newcomers to the lumber camp always got him.

This newcomer was called the Calgary Kid. He was blue-eyed, ready to smile, but a trifle grim-lipped when he was alone. He was a scrapper, Jack McCarthy; but in his twenty-three years of life most of his scraps had been the sort which muscles and a good share of brains often fail to win.

The Kid came from a granger family in Saskatchewan. There were eight younger brothers and sisters, and an invalid mother. The wheat farm was that tantalizing kind which will grow luxuriant stands of grain—every second year. The whole year in between the land must be plowed twice and left to lie fallow, or there will be no crops at all.

Then sometimes—as this year—comes drouth instead of a crop year. That was what had brought the Kid west to the British Columbia logging camp. His wages went back weekly, and they were sorely needed.

Because he spent nothing, did not even chew snuff, the Kid was not popular. He did not explain anything, so in the course of his first winter month he had two knockdown-dragout fights with camp bullies. Both times he won so decisively that he afterwards was left alone.

The Kid did not care much. Already he had one friend. The bad horse, Smoke, had been getting the strangest thrill of his horse life. Instead of the whip, and then neglect when he was steaming hot and the below-zero blasts swept through the mountain cuts, he got pats on the head and words of encouragement.

Then at camp where columns of steam rose from his withers, he received a nightly rubdown with straw, and a blanket clipped together close up at his neck. Twice a week came a currying and brushing.

There were shovelfuls of fresh shavings in his stall for him to lie down upon nightly. And from the cookee shack the Kid invariably brought an apple or two in his parka pockets.

REAL PALS

Smoke had started to whinny a welcome when he heard the Kid's steps. It was less than a week before he was nosing toward those pockets that might hold apples. And the Kid, who had a way with farm horses and liked them, talked to Smoke. If some of the bitter things said were out of the horse's possible ken, it did not matter. Smoke began to prick up his ears, and actually try to anticipate his new master's commands.

The company had moved back to a partially logged tract called Ghost Run. Here were medium sized spruce logs to be snagged out by the high-wheelers. At the end of the winter before the region, which was made up of rough cuts and ravines, in between sizeable brown cliffs down which in summer lacy waterfalls played, had been started—then stopped by a queer happening. Probably a tragedy.

A French-Canadian logger, a wild fellow they called Loupgaroo Le-Gendre, went out one day with a team. One of the horses was Smoke, the other a good worker called Billy. Smoke and Billy came back to camp alone, with the log drag. Nothing ever was found of the driver, though a party of forty men searched.

Then the superstitious ones got saying the ghost of Loupgaroo haunted the icy slopes and cliffs. Nonsense, of course. The work was resumed the following winter, but the superstition had grown. Only the Kid, a newcomer, had not heard of it. He would not have paid any attention, anyway.

Heavy snow and then a thaw that froze quickly, put away the high-wheelers temporarily. The men, with teams, were given sledges with which to bring out the smaller stuff, until the going got better. The Kid hitched up Billy with Smoke. These were old working partners; and Billy never made trouble.

The sled tracks were through, and were iced each night by a tank sled carrying a thousand gallons of water, with petcocks that let the water flow out right behind the runners. So the sledges worked slickly enough, as long as they stuck to the tracks.

A BEAR

Three miles out of camp, on the way into Ghost Run on the track the Kid had been told to take, the iced tracks passed close to a snow-crowned lump of brown rocks that shelved back into a much higher cliff. The brown lump was only about 20 feet high, with a couple of leaning sugar pine saplings hanging out and over. Nothing remarkable about it, that a man could see.

Yet right here on the trail, the Kid had his first trouble with the team. Both Billy and Smoke pricked up their ears, and acted nervous. Then Smoke astounded the driver by backing in the traces and simply refusing to go ahead.

"What's up there, old fellow?" asked the Kid, staring up and seeing nothing. He went forward and calmed the animal with pats. "Think you smell a bear? Well, all bear are asleep this time of year. Nothing else here that'll bother a horse or man."

That was the woods slogan. If you come on a sne bear with cubs, go somewhere else fast—preferably downhill, as a bear has short fore legs and can't make time down hill. Mountain lions never attack man—or so the legend has it. That particular legend is false. Wound or starve a big cat and she will attack even a Kodiak bear or an elephant.

The Kid tried and tried again, but was stalled. The two horses simply would not pass that brown lump of rock. And the usually tractable Smoke was the most decisive in refusing his new friend. He did not offer to bite, but laid back his ears and cowered, almost like a dog that fears a whip.

It happened that the foreman came along on foot. "Get going there, Kid!" he commanded harshly. "I'll be back in an hour, and you'd better have something to show. The men here are lying down on the job, and I won't stand for it!"

The Kid said nothing, but his blue eyes grew bleak. He worked hard, and knew it. The job would have been thrown right back into that foreman's teeth—if it had not been for the half-starving family back there on the Calgary flatlands.

As it was, the Kid knew he had to take anything that came, and do the job somehow through the whole winter. He took a deep breath, went out in front of Smoke, grabbed the bit, and then fairly dragged the animal ahead on the iced trail. Billy, though plainly disturbed, was too amiable an animal to make an open revolt. He came along reluctantly.

Just below the snow-covered rock it happened. Up there a long, lean dun-colored shape crouched. It was a three-legged female mountain lion. Nine months before this big cat had tangled with a human being. In killing the French-Canadian, LeGendre, the cat had suffered an almost severed fore leg. Loupgaroo had carried a sharp knife, and slashed with it—before he died.

The cat had crawled back to its lair. Then the leg festered and went bad. The mountain lion chewed it off short, and in course of months of semi-starvation, actually recovered.

MAN VS. BEAST

Now, slavering with hunger, she leapt down—straight at the man and the horse!

Smoke saw her coming. He screamed in terror, and wrenched back. The Kid, holding fast, was jerked a yard from the lion's leap, but suffered a long scratch across his shoulders.

Then came what for the kid was a kaleidoscopic nightmare of flurrying fur and snow, with snorting, screaming horses, and death coming at him with drawn claws and gleaming fangs.

The Kid had no weapon save his fists and boots. He kicked and struck—but against a famished lion such blows were nothing. The cat came up and after him, snarling blood lust and hunger.

Somehow the Kid escaped that next attack, but only temporarily. The cat would not be dodged. It meant to eat. It almost came erect on its hind legs, clawing like a boxing kangaroo, as it closed again upon the defenseless man.

Smoke saw the tall, lean brown back. Quick as a flash the gray horse turned in the muddle of traces, backed two swift steps, and then lashed out with both rear hoofs. Sharp-shod hoofs, driven by 1250 pounds of muscled horse, struck the mountain lion squarely in the middle of the back.

Bone caved and crunched audibly!

On the other side of the animal, trying to shield his face and eyes from the horrible claws and fangs, by throwing up his arms and elbows in front of his face, the Kid did not see. He did hear the snorting scream of horse triumph, though. And at that instant the soft ventral side of the mountain lion was driven into him as though a speeding locomotive had struck them both and driven them back into a heap against the side of the rock cliff!

The lion's snarl changed abruptly to a scream of agony. It writhed away, then back on top of the dazed, almost unconscious woodsman. But it was not thinking of him now. It was clawing, and biting at itself, trying to do something to assuage the terrible hurt in its own back—the hurt which paralyzed its one remaining back leg.

After minutes it was lying there, eyes still malevolent, and white froth in the corners of the wide, savage mouth. That was when Smoke, dragging fragments of harness with him, came over screaming, and with ears back. He reared, and came down with all the weight of his body upon his sharp fore hoofs—and after he had done that thrice, the flattened cat-amount moved no more.

When the foreman did return, he found the Kid trying to patch together pieces of harness, and get his team working the sledge again. One look at the eight-foot cat on the ground, though, and the foreman's eyes grew round. He had not a word of criticism over the delay in getting at the logs.

Hasty Meal Easy Now

By MARTHA LEE

Grandmother never was flurried when unexpected guests drove up to her door. Even without modern conveniences, she had her own favorite short-cuts in producing a tasty meal from her well-stocked larder.

The modern homemaker has her well-stocked larder, too, but in somewhat different form. Her emergency shelf with its cans of vegetables and fruits and its rows of meat dishes in tins or glass jars ready to serve as the main dish of a really hearty meal, would have amazed and charmed the homemaker of an earlier period.

WIDE VARIETY OF MEATS

Among the best known packaged and canned meats are dried beef, frankfurters, little links of sausage, summer sausage, bacon, minced and deviled ham, pickled pigs' feet and pickled tongue. Canned corned beef hash is growing in popularity. Now you can even get canned stew. By taking a look around the shelves of your grocery store or retail meat shop, you'll find many other prepared meat products whose acquaintance will be a definite advantage to you.

VERSATILE CORNED BEEF HASH

You can serve the meats in many ways. Take corned beef, for instance. You may use it in sandwiches, sliced thin on a cold meat platter, or as a hot dish served with vegetables as the center of a quickly prepared New England dinner. Each dish offers many similar opportunities. With the wide variety available there is no need for the modern hostess to be socially embarrassed for not having anything on hand when unexpected guests drop in.

CORNED BEEF HASH PEAKS

2 cans corned beef hash
2 tbsp. butter
3 large onions (Bermuda preferred)

Cut onions into large round slices. Spread each with butter and season with salt and pepper. Top each with a mound of corned beef hash and bake 30 minutes in a 350 deg. F. oven. Serve with chili sauce.

EGGS IN CORNED BEEF HASH NESTS

6 eggs
2 1-lb. cans corned beef hash
1 tbsp. butter

Divide contents of each can of hash into 3 parts. Shape into mounds and press a deep cavity in the top of each with a tablespoon. Break 1 egg into each hash mound, add a bit of butter to each and bake on an oiled baking sheet until eggs are set. Makes 6 servings.

HOT LIVER SAUSAGE AND BACON

1 lb. liver sausage, sliced thick
½ lb. sliced bacon

Slice sausage into ¼-inch slices and remove casing. Fry slowly sliced bacon until crisp—about 7 to 8 minutes. Remove to warm platter and brown the sausage on both sides in the bacon fat. Serve as supper dish. Makes 5 servings.

SCALLOPED DRIED BEEF AND CELERY

2½ oz. glass dried beef
3 cups cut celery
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup celery stock
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook celery in boiling salted water until just clear. Make sauce by melting butter, adding flour and stirring in the stock from cooked celery, mixed with the evaporated milk. When thickened, add the dried beef broken in pieces. Season to taste and place in casserole. Cover with buttered bread crumbs or cracker crumbs and bake 25 minutes at 350 deg. F. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

BAKED TREET WITH SPECIAL MUSHROOM SAUCE

1 can treet
½ cup condensed mushroom soup
3 tbsp. Italian style grated cheese

Mix ¼ can of mushroom soup with ¼ cup water. Add cheese and stir until smooth. Pour over a loaf of treet. Bake 30 minutes in a 375 deg. F. oven. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Smart Set Fashions

Suspenders Are in Style

For that ultra fashion-conscious crowd, the beginning grade schoolers, there will be at least one suspender frock in every wardrobe. It's a "right" style because of its very popularity, insuring your young hopeful of that proper feeling of being part and parcel of the group which the psychologists tell us is a good idea. However, more than that, it is an exceptionally practical as well as pretty frock because it's made of a crush-resistant teca flannel woven with Eastman crimped acetate rayon. The blouse and skirt are attached, and the suspenders are really trimming bands stitched over the shoulders to stay put, something the budding tomboy will appreciate. Even the skirt gores are stitched to hold their crisp outlines. The frock is $3 in sizes 3-6½, and if you phone or write our Beauty and Fashion Department we will gladly give you shopping information—ANNICE BRINK.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SEND your thanks for the following pearl of wisdom to that grand space-juggler, Mr. E. V. Durling, Boston American Columnist. And make it vanilla-sundae for mine, when you celebrate. For if Socrates ever got off a better wisie than this, I'd like the copyright. Says E. V. D.:

"WHY, when you are invited out for dinner, don't folks ever have corned beef and cabbage."

Which is, I submit, not only a mouthful but also a practically perfect program for life! Corned beef and cabbage—if there's a more delectable or democratic dish, I've yet to meet it.

And take it from me, Messrs. Roosevelt and Willkie, if either of you boys want a fool-proof folio for election, there are the makings. Ye Average Voter may turn a deaf ear to talk of taxes 'n' tariffs. He may listen indifferently to high-tension tantrums over Conscription and Preparedness. He may even catch forty winks while the Big Boys are enthusiastically remembering The Forgotten Man. But just let someone—anyone—whisper—

"Corned Beef 'n' Cabbage—huh?" . . . and he'll be there with an outsize platter and all his votes! For, regardless of all our high-brow pretensions, corned beef 'n' cabbage is where we Americans live!

THE SIMPLE LIFE . . . the common tang of honest, earthy things—that's our wave length! That's the material grub and the spiritual go-gettem—and the social get-together—we Yankees understand.

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE!

THE SIMPLE, HONEST DISH OF A SIMPLE, SINCERE PEOPLE—

THE STRAIGHT-FROM-THE SHOULDER FARE OF A BUNCH OF HARD-HITTIN' GUYS—

THAT'S THE "PSYCHIC SIGNIFICANCE" OF CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE—

AND WHAT DUMBELLS WE ARE TO FORGET IT IN OUR DAILY LIFE!

democracy the sharing of the common thing. The common duty and delight, the common decency, the common vision. There was, and is, the secret of our Americanism. Other nations may be regimented by elaborate rituals, whipped into line by threats and discipline or synthetic dreams of superiority. But for us there is—and always has been—the shared and simple pleasure of—CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE! LIBERTY AND EQUALITY!

Exercise Reduces Waistline

Those pesky rolls of fat about the middle—how they age a woman's figure! And what a handicap they are to wearing the new slim-waisted clothes! Shopping for your fall suit, you may be surprised to find that the skirt doesn't begin to fasten.

Lack of the right exercise gives those fatty pads a chance to form. And even a young active woman may fail to give important muscles enough of a workout and get "middle-aged middle" as a result.

Fortunately a simple exercise routine will melt waistline bulges away.

Here's an exercise that will work wonders for your waist. Lie on your back, legs straight, arms out to side. Keeping shoulders flat on floor, pull both knees up to chest and roll them over to left side then to right side. Swing them from one side to the other six times. Rest. Repeat twelve to eighteen times.

Our 40-page booklet, Beauty and Health Through Simple Exercises gives safe, easy exercises to tone up the muscles, to correct faults of neck, shoulders, bust, hips, thighs, back and posture.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Fragrance-Matched Ensemble Makes Ideal Gift

By ARLINE GOULD

A FLOWER fragrance . . . but with a certain touch of sophistication . . . and in a very party-ish mood . . . heads the line-up of a brand new fragrance-matched beauty ensemble. It's a divine gift idea for anyone young, or with young ideas.

There's everything from lipstick to bath talc . . . and not only is the idea and the scent new, but even the colors of the make-up have been newly created!

In this age of ensembling, it's a smart touch to find that this whole group is done in baby-pink and white . . . an accent for any decorating scheme that has youth in it!

So you can match the make-up to the type of the recipient, or for yourself, there are three new lipstick tints and three face powder shades. And a nifty idea for the young 'un, particularly with winter sports ahead, is the inclusion of a colorless lip pomade, but scented like springtime, to keep her lips soft and unchapped.

There are several beautifully packaged gift sets of these fragrance-matched beauty aids, starting at $1.50, and going on to a very glamorous one for $4.75, containing a bottle of bouquet cologne, flacon of matching perfume, bath powder, lipstick and face powder.

If you'd like to learn all about this gay, fragrance-matched set of beauty, bath and perfume items . . . to be bought separately, or in special gift sets, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, except on the week-end, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

1941 Buicks on Exhibit Here Today

STREAMLINED—Feature model of the new Buick line for 1941, which makes its debut today, is this super-streamlined series 40 special sedanet. It's a two-door, six-passenger coupe-sedan.

IMPROVED NEW BUICK RESTYLED

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 7—Five new lines of motor cars embodying such advanced features as compound carburetion, new aerodynamic bodies and engines developing 115, 125 and 165 horsepower, are being introduced today by the Buick division of General Motors Corp. in dealers' showrooms throughout the country.

The new cars represent outstanding improvement. They have been completely restyled, with an entire new line of bodies on the Series 40 Special, Series 60 Century and Series 90 Limited cars, and new modernistic treatment of radiator grilles, hood and front end sheet metal.

The Buick line for 1941 covers the price range from the lower medium price field, under $1000, to the de luxe passenger car field in the upper price brackets for which an entirely new line of Buick Series 90 Limited cars has been designed this year.

ENGINE FEATURE

Among outstanding developments in the new models are the new Buick engines which have unusually high compression ratios making them available for the use of the new high octane fuels now developed for the commercial market. The engines are of the "fireball" design, having dome shaped pistons and combustion chamber contour that compresses the fuel into the shape of a flattened ball, directly around the spark plug, providing maximum combustion efficiency without detonation or ping.

In the new styling, Buick engineers and designers, in cooperation with General Motors stylists, have given breader range and greater utility to the "torpedo" type of body introduced by Buick last year. Usually wide, with five feet of shoulder room in the front seats, the cars are fully streamlined from the graceful hood to the rear of the tapered tail. They take full advantage of the tear drop design in which is accomplished a sweeping aerodynamic streamlined back of unusual attractiveness.

TEAR DROP DESIGN

The new cars are fleet looking and graceful, with smooth contours and scientific placing of windows and accessories to provide the utmost in both appearance and utility. The new aerodynamic bodies designed for the Series 40 Special and Series 60 Century cars provide comfortable space for six passengers in addition to adequate luggage space in the streamlined tail.

The tear drop design has been For the first time in more than five years, according to the engineers, a completely modern, streamlined and fully appointed car has been brought to the fine car field in the new Buick Series 90 Limited group with which this division of General Motors will go to the fine car market in 1941.

Safety Tips for Drivers, Children as Schools Open

With schools throughout the country reopening at this season of the year, the fact that more children between the ages of 5 and 14 were killed by motor vehicles in September or October of 1939 than in any other month of the school year assumes grim importance, warns Kenneth N. Beadle.

"We face the possibility that the same months of 1940 will show the same increase unless additional child safety precaution is taken," states Beadle, educational director of the National Conservation Bureau of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives.

"A large proportion of those child deaths are directly traceable to faulty, insufficient or even a total lack of child training in the art of recognizing and avoiding traffic hazards.

"In an effort to overcome this condition an accident prevention program was carried last summer to 30,000 teachers in 20 states. Although the whole field of safety education was covered in these courses, particular emphasis was laid on traffic hazards.

METHODS STRESSED

"Positive not negative methods of teaching safety was stressed. The teachers were shown that the best approach to the child is by appealing to the child's desire to excell, in contrast to the old method of terrifying him with a grim succession of DONTS."

Here are some excellent rules for the child and driver:

For the child:

1—Always cross the street under the supervision of the officer or teacher if one is present; always observe the traffic light, whether or not there is a traffic signal, always look both ways before crossing the street. The driver may not be on the job; you should be on yours.

2—Do not run into the street in pursuit of a ball or playmate without first making sure you will be able to return to the curb safely.

3—Do not annoy the drivers by running alongside their cars or darting in and out of the street without warning. How would you like to have motorists make a game of trying to drive as close to you as possible without knocking you down?

OBSERVE ALL SIGNS

For the motorist:

1—Beginning today, observe all SCHOOL SIGNS. During the summer you may have acquired the habit of ignoring these signs; break it now.

2—Children especially young children, are liable to do the unexpected; they act first and think afterward. When you have to drive past a child playing near the street, slow down. He may dart out in front of your car.

3—Be especially observant of parked cars. In addition to the fact that a parked car is as much an obstruction to visibility as a blind corner, many children customarily play in and about parked cars.

Dealers to See New Chevrolet

More than 275 members of Chevrolet's wholesale field organization throughout the United States will meet in Detroit Monday and Tuesday for the division's annual sales convention. Business of the meetings will include presentation of the new 1941 Chevrolet models to the wholesale men, and announcement of Chevrolet's policies and plans for the coming model year.

In addition to the wholesale organization, nine representative retail salesmen, chosen from top-ranking dealerships in each of the nine regions in the country, will be special guests, William E. Holler, general sales manager, announced.

"Chevrolet's annual sales convention is of greater general interest this year than at any previous time," Holler asserted. "At the close of a year which has seen a million automobiles produced by this one company alone, the industry stands on the brink of a year that is forecast by many as an even greater selling opportunity than 1940.

"The product we will present to our sales force during this session is in all ways the finest Chevrolet has ever produced, and with an equal and perhaps better market available in 1941, the current year's production record may well be surpassed."

New Plant for Lincoln Bodies

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 7—Expansion of facilities at the Lincoln Division plant to accommodate for the first time the manufacture of the complete line of all-steel Lincoln-Zephyr bodies was announced today by the Ford Motor Co.

The new body department — a $1,000,000 project—marks the final step of the company to control in every phase the quality of Lincoln-Zephyr motor cars.

Company officials announced that the new department, occupying 200,000 square feet of factory floor space, was already in full operation producing bodies for the 1941 Lincoln-Zephyr models, which are scheduled to make their debut on Sept. 20.

Bailey Appointed to New Manager Post by Shell Co.

Bert C. Astrup, eastern division manager for the Shell Oil Company, Incorporated, has been named assistant salesmanager of that company, L. T. Kittinger, vice-president-marketing, announced in New York yesterday. Astrup will be succeeded by Herbert M. Bailey, northern division manager, who becomes manager of newly created Boston division.

Astrup, who has had a wide experience in the marketing of petroleum products both along the eastern seaboard and on the Pacific coast, is well known in local petroleum and civic circles. He has taken an active part in his industry's activities in New England and is a member of the board of directors of the Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale.

He came to Boston in December, 1936, as Eastern division sales manager and was advanced to division manager in August of the next year. A native of Seattle, Wash., Astrup attended the University of Washington and first became associated with Shell in its operations department at Los Angeles in 1924.

In his new position Bailey will direct all of his company's activities in Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut and a portion of Vermont. Assisting him will be Arlin T. Doane, salesmanager at Boston; Lewis H. Albright, salesmanager at Hartford; Ralph D. Kizer, salesmanager at Portland; James S. Morse, operations manager; Robert P. Clark, office manager, and Edward A. Norman, credit manager. The division headquarters will be located at 737 Commonwealth ave.

Dorchester Boy Gets Ford Prize

Skill in driving an automobile brought to John J. Burke of 1010 Washington st., Dorchester, an official certificate and a handsome wrist watch from the Ford Good Drivers League and warm congratulations from Police Commissioner J. F. Timilty and Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Frank A. Goodwin.

Taught to drive by his brother, young Burke came within an ace of winning one of the 48 university scholarships in the Ford Good Drivers League contest sponsored by Edsel Ford.

Burke, a high school senior, was runner-up in the Massachusetts competition, scoring right behind the winner in the contest which included a trying twenty-five mile road test, an essay of 300 words on the subject, "What I Can Do Personally to Reduce Automobile Accidents," and a written examination on questions based on the book, "How to Become a Skilled Driver," written and published for the Ford Good Drivers League.

GREATER AIR FURY LOOSED BY NAZIS

flying above a balloon barrage was seen to drop 15 bombs. A moment later three British Spitfires dived into them.

Other bombs were heard as the aircraft disappeared.

In the distance, big columns of smoke were visible.

A parachute blossomed out from one winged German machine.

An Associated Press man counted well over 150 planes in the air at one time. As usual, the German bombers were heavily escorted by swarms of Messerschmitt fighters.

BATTLE BEATS FOOTBALL

The raids began just as shows in the West End were completing matinees. Chorus girls trooped into the streets with the audiences to watch the action.

But before the all-clear signal sounded it got too hot for them and they all ducked to cover. The alarm began at 4:56 p. m. and lasted an hour and 42 minutes.

At a football game a crowd of 4000 spectators turned their eyes from the contest to watch the battle. Most of them stuck to their seats, but the playing lagged.

The first raiders, a flight of seven, swept across the metropolitan area just after the sirens had sounded at 4:56 p. m. They were followed by several single planes, so high they were mere specks in the sky.

Up to that hour, Londoners had had a rare day of respite from the banshee howl of the sirens, in contrast to yesterday's six alarms from dawn to midnight.

Early today the people, ignoring the warnings of air raid wardens to "take shelter," crowded into the center of streets to watch the show.

WHAT CROWDS SAW

A violent dogfight developed over one section, with half a dozen raiders and defenders scrapping.

The din of guns and airplane motors came from many directions to mid-town listeners, indicating that the attack had been made by a large force which split into several groups when it reached the London area.

A short time before the alarm, a formation of raiders had been met over the Thames estuary by British fighters. One was shot down in the sea after dropping its load of bombs.

Earlier today the Nazi raids had eased up after a day and a night of furious horror.

There were some casualties, however, when a bomb dropped in the neighborhood of an airdrome in Kent in an attack described as "unsuccessful."

NAZIS BEATEN BACK

Thirty Nazi planes, approaching an airfield in the southeast, were turned back by anti-aircraft fire. A bomb fell in a field.

Another formation almost destroyed a historic schoolhouse in a southwestern town. Boys were at play near by, but none was hurt.

Damage to the northwest was confined mainly to broken windows when bombs fell in a village and near a cemetery.

High explosive and incendiary bombs were showered on the coast by a formation which swept overhead just before dawn in a thunder of anti-aircraft fire.

The Germans employed a new technique in their attacks on the London area during the night, dropping flares in chains to illuminate the capital with an eerie light before unloading their bombs.

Several scream bombs were dropped by the raiders, their high-pitched shriek rising above the hammering of anti-aircraft guns.

The almost continuous raids launched against the London area were begun at 4:50 a. m. yesterday, the first time since Sunday that the pre-dawn darkness had been broken by attack. The raiders came in masses of 300 or more, with waves of 20 or 30 planes flying over the city in relays.

So fast did the raiders come that one one occasion two bombs were dropped on the edge of the metropolitan area before a warning was sounded. This occurred just before the fourth alarm, which came at 8:53 p. m.

HIT CITIES AT NIGHT

British observers said the Germans apparently were devoting their night attacks to urban objectives and striking at Royal Air Force bases during the day in an attempt to gain supremacy of the air by knocking out the British fighter force.

Attacks on coastal bases by short-ranged Nazi fighters presum- British air force has been destroy- British aerial defense line back, giving the invaders an area in which they would be comparatively free from fighter opposition.

Despite the increasing pressure being applied by the Germans, the British air orce has been destroying an average of two and one-half Nazi planes for each loss it has sustained, it was said. More than half the German losses were said to be bombers.

British Drop Fire Bombs Over Berlin

soldiers were killed, and 22 Berliners were known to have been wounded in the night attack.

In addition, a number of work men's homes were wrecked.

It appeared that the raid was directed chiefly against the Berlin garrison barracks in the Moabit sector of the capital northwest of the Reichstag, but many incendiaries hit the neighboring criminal courts building, starting a bright blaze on the top floor.

One official was killed and two others were injured when the ceiling collapsed. Prisoners detained in the building were taken down stairs to air raid cellars before the bombs fell

The attack was part of a general raid on Germany in which the British bombers were said to have crossed the Neiherlands border in waves, some going into the industrial Ruhr and others continuing eastward to Berlin.

SEARCHLIGHT BOMBED

They dropped numerous flares over Potsdam and Spandau as well as over Berlin. In Brandenburg, 37 miles southwest of Berlin, a searchlight battery was hit by a bomb. One light was smashed and several soldiers were killed or injured.

Visiting the various sections that were bombed, I found the Lehter railway station — from which one entrains from Berlin en route to America—lighted by flames in the rear. A small warehouse in the adjoining freight yards half a mile from the station had been hit by incendiary bombs Oddly enough, empty candy boxes were stored in the warehouse.

Gangs of workmen were still busy late this morning feverishly repairing damages in the Lehrter station area and other districts struck by bombs. All dud and suspected time bombs dropped by the British were removed.

A mile north I found the top story of a six-floor radio factory burning after being hit by incendiaries.

The subway station at the Friedrichstrande, a few blocks from Berlin's famous central Unterdenlinden, was pierced by a dud flare, which at first was mistaken for a bomb.

Another incendiary bomb set fire to the local city hall in Weissensee

JURY ENDS SESSION

With return of 34 more indictments, the Middlesex County grand jury today ended a busy week which saw a total of 76 persons indicted.

Big British Oil Tanks Bombed

ROME, Sept. 7 (AP)—Italian planes sent large fires in a bombardment of oil tanks and refineries in Haifa, principal port of Palestine and a main British oil terminus in the Near East, the Italian high command announced today.

In attacks on British shipping in the Red sea, an Italian submarine sank an oil tanker and Italian planes bombed a ship convoy, damaging a British cruiser and two steamers, a communique said.

In North Africa, the communique added Italian air formations bombed the Alexandria-Mersa Matruh railroad and, when they were attacked by British pursuiters, shot down two planes. Three other British planes were reported "probably shot down."

Joining Navy Saves Youth

Enlistment in the U. S. Navy saved a Wellesley youth from court penalty today for taking an auto without leave to drive to the New York World's Fair.

The defendant, Theodore S. Hanks, 21, of Elmwood rd., Wellesley, was arrested in Westport, Ct., in a car reported stolen in Newton.

He pleaded guilty to using the machine without authority.

The case was placed on file today, after police had told the court Hanks had joined the navy was awaiting a call to active duty.

More Panama Canal Laborers Strike

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 7 (INS)—Another 1000 laborers went on strike on thelock projects of the Panama Canal today and government officials ordered an investigation to determine whether fifth columnists and labor agitators were behind the walkout.

Officials were described as alarmed over the seriousness of the situation which has tied up all the secret work on the Canal locks including the bomb-proofing projects.

BILL GRIMES SAYS:

Sox Lack Southpaws For Yankees Series

And now we come to the "croocial" series of the Red Sox' 1940 campaign, a two-game set-to with the New York Yankees, who have held the world's championship title for four years.

BILL GRIMES

The Yankees, despite the fact that they were stopped twice this week by the Washington Senators, are only two games behind the Cleveland Indians, who were in reverse during their three-day stay in Detroit.

The Red Sox are in fourth place. They can pull up on even terms with the McCarthymen by making a clean sweep of the series.

But, Manager Joe Cronin lacks two southpaw hurlers to toss in against the world's champions. Lefty Grove, the ace port sider of the Red Sox, went 13 innings last Monday down in Washington and he will not be sufficiently rested to take on the Yankees. Fritz Ostermueller beat the Athletics last Wednesday and Earl Johnson, who is Cronin's third and last southpaw, hurled six and two-thirds innings on Thursday.

And it's questionable if Manager Cronin has enough talented right handers on his roster to cope successfully with the Yanks. The veteran Joe Heving is Cronin's selection for the opening game this afternoon. Heving turned in a great performance down in the Yankee Stadium a few weeks ago on his first start of the season. After acting in the role of a relief hurler all year, Heving drew his initial starting assignment against the Yankees and held them to three hits.

But can he repeat?

That question will be answered this afternoon.

The Red Sox have a chance to cut in on the big money. The Cleveland Indians have started to hold meetings again. They are about ready to crack wide open after blowing three games to the Tigers in Detroit. Del Baker's charges are worthy of consideration after knocking off the Indians. The Tigers are not an American League championship outfit. However, they are in a position to ruin Cleveland chances and may be the means of paving the way for the Yankees to repeat for the fifth consecutive year.

* * *

On the morrow the Hatherly Country Club, at North Scituate, will sponsor its annual member-pro tourney and no fewer than 25 of the leading money chasers in the state have signed up for this stellar event . . . A year ago, an all Hatherly team, Pro. Lincoln and Amateur Albee topped a classy field and are favored to repeat . . . Bud Clancy, Arlmont, and "Buddy" Gaham the club champion, who were the runners up last season and Johnny Thoren, Woodland and George Muir should press the Lincoln-Albee team for top honors.

In the opening game of the Hartford-Scranton series, Jack Onslow's Baby Bees operated on Mickie Harris and Woody Rich . . . With Ralph Hodgin aboard, Mel Preibibsch, who will report to Manager Casey Stengel after the Eastern League play offs, tied into one of Mickie Harris' nicest serves and slapped the ball over the left field fence some 365 feet away . . . Woody Rich was the third Scranton hurler and in the 10th inning, Johnny Dudra, who was sent to Hartford from York, Pa., of the Inter-State League, connected with a single which broke up the ball game.

Rudy Hulswitt, who managed the Bees' farm at York, is in town . . . Although his club didn't make the play offs, Rudy developed and picked up some promising youngsters . . . He's very strong for John McLaughlin, the big hight hand pitcher from Brighton, whom he believes is a real major league prospect, and Lou Gremp, who reported to Manager Stengel in St. Louis during the last Western trip . . . And, he signed up a young battery, comprising of a couple of kids from the Keystone State, Earl Weaver, an 18-year-old pitcher and Bob Grady, a catcher, who is only 17 years of age . . . Weaver, who stands 6 feet 2½ inches and weighs 195, was working in a stone quarry at Middletown, Pa., when he was recommended to Hulswitt, while Brady, who is also a six-footer and a left hand hitter, returned to his home town, Lewistown, Pa., last Tuesday to finish high school.

* * *

When Ray Berres, who has been performing so sensationally for the Bees, was with the Dodgers all of the Brooklyn pitchers wanted him behind the bat whenever they were on the hill top . . . But, the powers that be up in the front office demanded that Babe Phelps do most, if not all, of the catching . . . So waivers were asked for and received on Berres and Ray was sold down the river to Louisville . . . The next fall, the Pittsburgh Pirates, who could have bought him for the waiver price, $7500, dug down and laid $12,000 on the line along with a player for Mr. Berres.

"Lefty" George, who pitched for the Braves many years ago, is 54 years of age, but he won three out of five games for York late this season . . . One week ago yesterday, Lefty pitched York to a 3 to 1 victory over Lancaster and on the following Monday, he went 12 innings against Harrisburg, losing 4 to 3, despite the fact that with proper support, he would have shut out his opponents . . . Rudy Hulswitt stated that despite his age, "Lefty" George is a better pitcher today than Mil Shoffner was when the latter was brought up to the Bees from Scranton . . . Al Roberge, the former Keith Academy star, wound up the season with a batting average of .302 at Evansville, which is in the Three Eye League . . . With his side kick, Jimmy Coughlin, who hails from Worcester, Roberge is leading his league in double plays . . . He'll be up for a long and successful sojourn in the National League in 1942.

Fading Indians Losing Grip

By Associated Press

If things don't get better for the Cleveland Indians pretty soon, they may have to include Manager Oscar Vitt in their board-of-strategy meetings.

After losing four straight—and giving the Tigers, Yankees and Red Sox renewed pennant hopes, the Injuns decided to leave Old Ossie out of the meeting before the crucial third game of the series with Detroit yesterday.

The result—Detroit 10, Cleveland 5—was the fifth straight set-back for the pitiery league leaders

4-GAME BLANKET

So the American League pennant chase is badly scrambled with only four games separating the first place Tribesmen from the fourth place Boston Red Sox. Detroit, by its victory, took over second place from the Yankees who ran into a snag in the person of left-handed Ken Chase of the Washington Senators and lost 3-1.

The odd part of the Detroit win was that Louis (Buck) Newsom pitched one of his poorest games in fashioning his 18th win of the season. But the Tigers sluggers, notably Billy Sullivan and Hank Greenberg who homered, helped him out.

YANKEES "CHASED"

The Yankee express for pennantville got sidetracked yesterday, also—but by a good pitching performance. Ken Chase scattered eight hits and Gee Gee Walker contributed a pair of homers. The Yanks were blanked until the ninth when they bunched three blows for their lone run.

15,000 SEE SOX PLAY YANKEES

By JOE CASHMAN

FENWAY PARK, Sept. 7 With the pennant chances of each team depending on the outcome, our unpredictable Red Sox and New York's red hot Yankees opened up a two-game series here this dark dismal afternoon.

Inky black skies and intermittent drizzles of rain held the crowd down to 15,000.

Manager Joe Cronin nominated Joe Heving, his veteran relief ace for mound duty. This was a logical selection for fireman Joe has a 3-0 record against the Yanks this season. One of these victories was gained on the Sox' last visit to New York when receiving his first starting assignment of the year Fireman Joe limited the world's champions to three hits in nine innings.

The visitors called on Marius Russo, brilliant young southpaw.

Entering this game the third-place McCarthymen were two games back of the pace-setting Cleveland Indians, while the fourth-place Croninmen were four games below the roof.

FIRST INNING

YANKEES—Gordon walked. Gordon stole second, Rolfe grounded out to Finney, Gordon taking third Henrich singled, scoring Gordon but Henrich was out trying to stretch it, Cramer to Doerr. Henrich hurt his leg and had to be carried off the field on the shoulders of his mates and it looked very much as if his leg was broken, or his knee badly sprained. Joe DiMaggio singled. Keller struck out. ONE RUN.

RED SOX—Selkirk playing right field for the Yankees. Dom DiMaggio sampled Crimer sacrificed, Russo to Dahlgren. Foxx singled, Dom DiMaggio stopping at third. Williams flied to Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio scoring after the catch. Cronin lofted Foxx at second. Cosetti to Gordon. ONE RUN

SECOND INNING

YANKEES—Gehrett threw out Russo. Cronin threw out Dahlgren. Crosetti was hit by a pitched ball. Crosetti was out stealing, Foxx to Cronin. NO RUNS

RED SOX—Doerr flied to Joe DiMaggio. Finney lined to Rolfe Gellert popped to Gordon. NO RUNS

THIRD INNING

YANKEES—Russo struggled. Henrich was found to be suffering from a pulled ligament in his left knee cap and will be out at least a week Gordon hit into a double play, Cronin to Doerr to Finney. Doerr threw out Rolfe. NO RUNS

Pennant Races at a Glance

By The Associated Press

The American League pennant chase is getting as tight as a noose on a fat man.

The stumbling Cleveland Indians are only a game in front of the enraged Detroit Tigers, two in front of the New York Yankees and a bare four games ahead of the Boston Red Sox.

The Tigers took another sock at the Indians, cutting them down by a score of 10-5 and taking over second place from the New York Yankees who bowed to Young Ken Chase and the Washington Senators by a 3-1 count. That gave the Tigers second place by a margin of .568 to .562. The idle Red Sox gained a half game on the Indians.

The National League isn't close yet, despite a twin victory for the Brooklyn Dodgers over the Phils by 8-0 and 14-3 which cut a full game off the lead the Cincinnati Reds enjoy. They are now seven full games out in front.

The standings:

McKechnie, Dykes Refuse Offer to Lead Cleveland

By Associated Press

Week's Wash: Have Bill McKechnie and Jimmy Dykes already turned down offers to manage Cleveland next year, as one New York newspaper reports?

When Freddy Fitzsimmons was run out of the game by Umpire Bick Campbell the other day (first time in Freddy's long career) he cried like a baby in the clubhouse.

Jimmy Foxx, who's getting 30 grand, is going to demand a raise if they want him to keep on catching next year.

Visitors from the golden west say Jerry Geisler, chairman of the California racing and boxing commissions, is going to be boomed for governor.

Coach Tad Wieman of Princeton can't see how anybody is going to halt Cornell's march to the eastern championship . . . Interest is so high in the Yanks' series with the Indians and Tigers next week, Columbia sent Mel Allen with the team to relay the dope back home.

Snead Spends Hour Putting After Winning

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP)—You might think a fellow who can drop 60-foot putts would be satisfied with his touch—but not Sammy Snead.

The erstwhile West Virginian, now representing Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Pa., holed a 60-footer yesterday as he put together a sizzling 65 that gave him first-day leadership in the $5000 Anthracite Open golf tournament.

Then he took a shower, changed clothes and spent an hour on the putting green. His amazing putt, incidentally, gave Snead an eagle 3 on the 510-yard fourth. Altogether he carved out four birdies and went over par only once.

Sammy's 65 equalled the tournament record set last year by Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., who turned in a 72 yesterday.

A stroke behind Snead was Felix Serafin, home pro, and trailing closely were Al Houghton, Baltimore, Md., with 68, Mike Turnesa, New York; Lew Worsham, Jr., Bethesda, Pa., and Terl Johnson, Norristown Pa., all with 69s.

Most of the big name pros were well off the pace and Byron Nelson, P. G. A. champ, blamed bad putting for the 73 he scored. "My putting touch has been bad for the last month," he commented.

Jimmy Thomson, Chicopee Falls, Mass., drove two balls o.t of bounds on the fir nine and slipped to 75. Lawson Little, national open king, had a 72. Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Ct., 72 and Ed Oliver, Hornell, N. Y., 70.

Oliver, who was disqualified in the national open after finishing in a tie with Sarazen and Little, showed he is no respecter of tradition. When his putter started acting up the big fellow pulled out a number of two iron and used it on four greens to sink short putts.

Quits Cinder Path at 75

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 7 (AP)—Luke Dillon, 75, who despite his advanced years has been winning 100-yard dashes right along, today announced his retirement "to give the younger fellows a chance."

"I've still got me a pretty fair pair of legs for an old man, but I dunno—guess I am getting along in years," he reluctantly admitted.

Dillon was a good 10-second man for the 100 when he was younger, but he didn't gain fame in this district until he became an "old timer" and slowed down to 11 seconds and a fraction. Since he was 62 he has issued a standing challenge to any runner aged 45 or above—and there were few takers.

When he was a city fireman 25 years ago, a horse crushed his foot during the tumult of an alarm. Physicians ordered him to quit running, but he kept on and has won a nice haul of medals and trophies ever since then.

Posedel on Hill In Phils Game

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 7—Boston's Bees, who have been doing all right the past month and a half, winning 26 out of their 41 games, opened a four-game series with the Phils at Shibe Park today. Nothing was at stake, however, the Phils resting so far back in the cellar, seventh place was conceded to the Bees.

Bill Posedel, with ten victories and 16 defeats in the record book, started for Boston in the first game of the doubleheader. Bill Beck, tall, bespectacled right-hander, was on the mound for Doc Prothro's outfit.

FIRST GAME
FIRST INNING

BEES—Glossop popped to Mahan. Cooney was safe when Mahan failed to touch the bag on his grounder to Bragan. Rowell forced Cooney, Bragan to Mueller. West grounded to Mahan, unassisted. NO RUNS.

PHILLIES—Glossop threw out May. Posedel tossed out Mueller. Litwhiler popped to Rowell. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

BEES—Ross flied to Rizzo. Miller doubled. Moore flied to Litwhiler. Berres fouled to Warren. NO RUNS

PHILLIES—Rizzo fanned. Rowell threw out Marty. Bragan lined to Miller. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

BEES—Posedel walked. Glossop singled, Posedel stopping at second. Cooney forced Posedel at third, May stepping on the bag. Rowell singled, and Glossop was out at the plate, Litwhiler to Warren. West flied to Litwhiler. N RUNS.

PHILLIES—Warren flied to Ross. Posedel tossed out Mahan. Beck struck out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING

BEES—Ross walked. Miller flied to Rizzo. Moore singled, Ross stopping at second. Berres singled, and Ross was run down trying to score, Marty to Beck to May. Posedel bounced to May, forcing Moore at third. NO RUNS.

PHILLIES—May singled, Mueller beat out a bunt, may taking second. Litwhiler bunted and May was out at third, Posedel to Glossop. Rizzo flied to Cooney. Marty lined to Glossop. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING

BEES—Mahan leaped in the air to stop Glossop's liner. Mueller threw out Cooney. Rowell doubled. West tripled, scoring Rowell. Ross was called out on strikes. ONE RUN.

PHILLIES—Glossop threw out Bragan. Warren singled. Mahan beat out a hit to short. Beck fouled to Glossop. May singled, filling the bases. Mueller grounded out to West, unassisted. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING

BEES—Miller singled. Moore fouled to May. Berres singled, Miller stopping at second. Posedel singled, Miller scoring. Glossop popped to Bragan. Cooney flied to Marty. ONE RUN.

PHILLIES—Litwhiler grounded out to Glossop. Rizzo grounded to Glossop. Marty doubled. Bragan flied to Ross. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING

BEES—Rowell popped to May. West drew a pass. Ross rolled along the first base line and was tagged out by Mahan, West taking second. Miller grounded to May and both runners were safe when May fumbled. Moore flied to Rizzo. NO RUNS.

CHAMPS DOMINATE IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—In no sport except women's tennis does the champion so thoroughly dominate the field that the eventual winner is known, year after year, before the tournament even starts—barring a broken leg or an outbreak of cholera.

In the national championships at Forest Hills, for instance, it is common knowledge that Alice Marble will win her fourth title when the finals come around next Monday.

On the men's floor there is some doubt whether the 1940 champion will be Bobby Riggs or Don McNeill, the hopeful from Oklahoma. Anyhow, enough doubt to keep the gallery guessing. But Miss Marble was about a 10-to-1 bet the day play started. The women always run that way.

BETTY FAILED

A glance through the records for the last 20 years shows that exactly six women have won the national championship, and two of those, Betty Nuthall and Anita Lizana, were put down as accidents, or something.

In that period Helen Wills Moody over-shadowed the field seven times; Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Helen Jacobs each won four titles, and Miss Marble now has captured the cup three times. Miss Marble has no one even to seriously challenge her for her fourth title this year.

Yesterday she polished off young Helen Bernhard of New York, 6—2, 6—3, in the quarter-finals, and she could have made it quicker if she had wished. Queen Alice now has won 27 straight tournaments. She next plays Valerie Scott, a nice English girl, on Sunday, and her opponent in Monday's final likely will be Helen Jacobs. She has trimmed Helen so many times she practically can call her shots.

Miss Scott scored an interesting victory over Dorothy May Bundy yesterday, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3. Dorothy, a powerful hitter, almost knocked Valerie's teeth out in the first set, but then Valerie got wise and softened up her game to a whisper.

KRAMER A SURPRISE

Jack Kramer, an unranked youngster from the Coast, furnished the best upset to date in the men's division by beating Frankie Parker a hot five-setter, 1—6, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3, 6—4. The day before, he had eliminated Henry Prusuff from Seattle, so he is full of surprises. But tomorrow he encounters Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, the tournament's co-favorite. That should be the last of young Kramer for 1940.

McNeill yesterday overcame a stubborn foe in eliminating Elwood Cooke, 9—7, 6—0, 4—6, 6—3. Cooke was very determined, and was hot as a Mexican pepper for the first set, after which he subsided.

The semi-final round was to be completed today, with Riggs playing Ted Schroeder and Frank Kovacs meeting Joe Hunt in the quarter-finals of the men's division and Helen Jacobs playing Virginia Wolfenden and Pauline Betz meeting Mary Hardwick in the women's.

Dog, Horse Handle Off

Attendance and betting dropped at horse and dog racing tracks in Massachusetts during the first 60 days of racing, a report of the State racing commission today revealed.

The State, however, increased its "take" because of increased levy voted by the legislature.

Total attendance up to Sept. 2 at all horse and dog tracks was 1,575,747, a decrease of 191,493; the total pari-mutuel handle was off $726,933 to $34,361,813; State receipts increased $77,159.75 to $1,533,679.38.

Ban Visitors At B. C. Practice

Beginning today all spectators will be barred from Alumni Field where Head Coach Frank Leahy is attempting to whip his Boston College squad into shape for the coming season, Graduate Manager of Athletics, John P. Curley made the announcement.

The move was deemed necessary when more than 200 "crashers" made their way inside the canvas enclosed field while Leahy was running the squad through its paces.

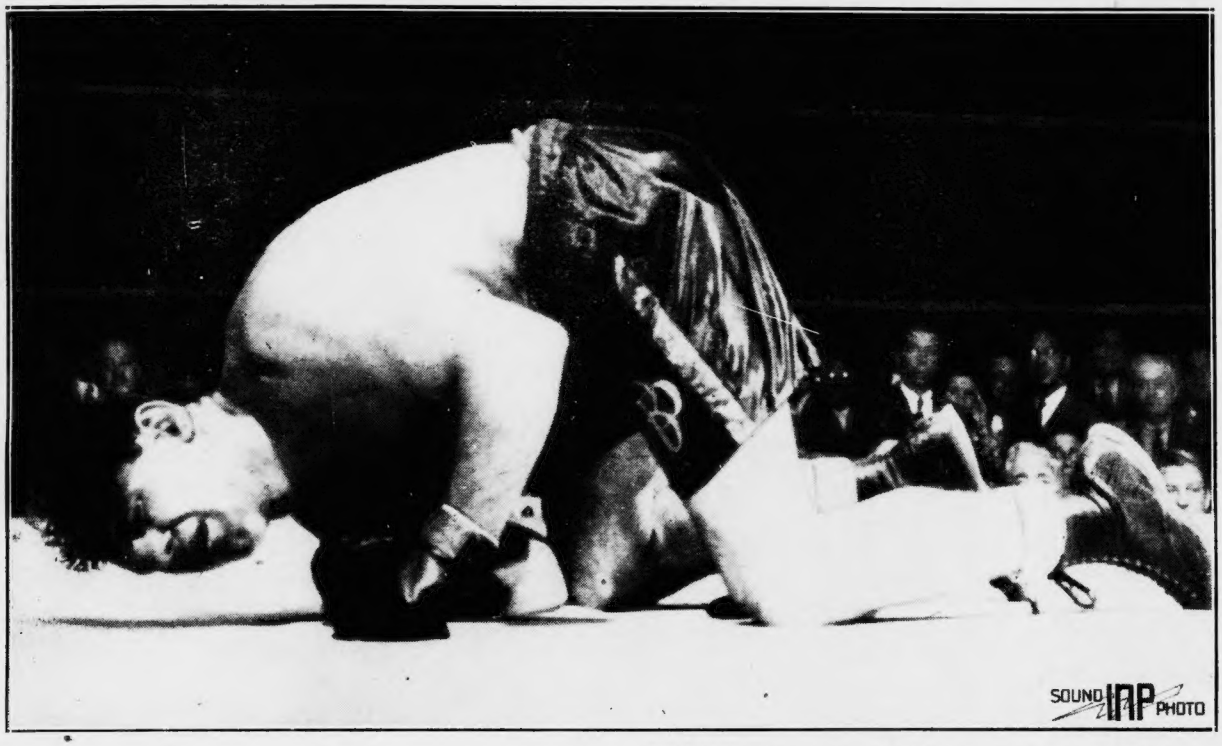
Heroes and Goats

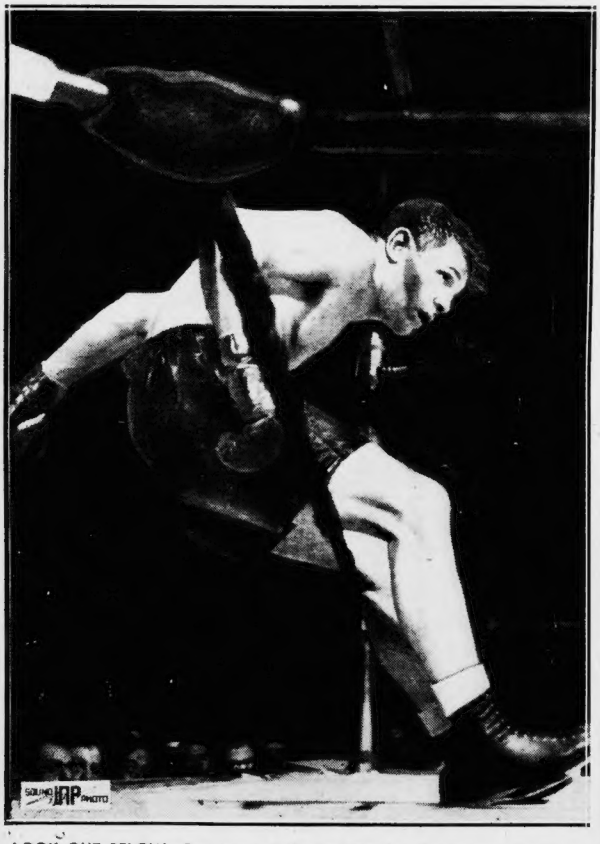
Heroes—Gerry Walker, Senators, who hit two home runs to give Washington a victory over New York; Joe Medwick, Dodgers, whose homer in the first game of a doubleheader with the Phillies enabled Freddie Fitzsimmons to annex his 14th victory.

Goats—Roy Bell, Indians, who booted a grounder which helped the Tigers beat league-leading Cleveland for the third straight time; Charley Ruffing, Yankees, who threw two home-run balls to Walker and batted into a double play to end a ninth-inning rally.

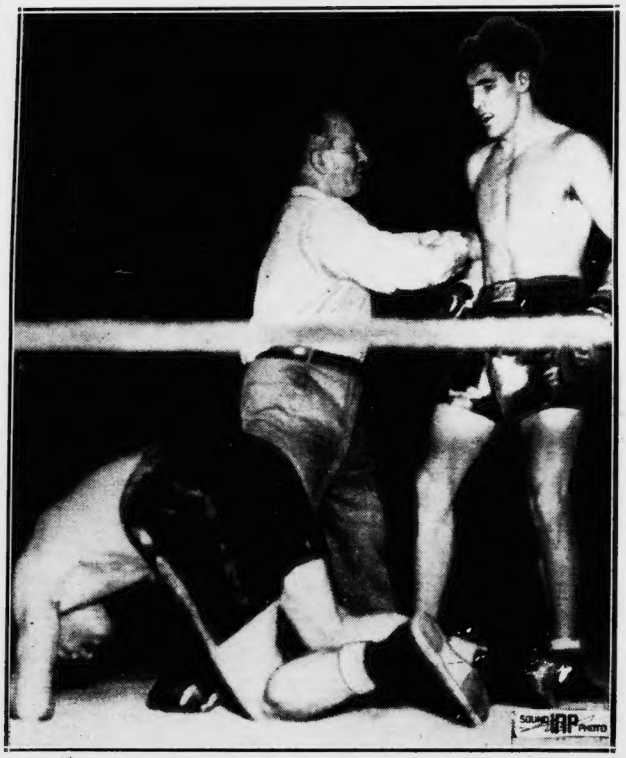
Foul Claimed as Conn Wins by K.O. in 13th



LAST DOWN and no more to go for Bob Pastor in the 13th round of his losing battle with Billy Conn at the New York Garden. This clear-cut action picture was made by International Speed-Ray camera, which stops action at 1 100-1000 of a second. Jimmy Johnston, Pastor's manager, claimed foul, but fair or foul, Pastor was a hurt and beaten fighter when the end came.



LOOK OUT BELOW—Beginning of the end for Bob Pastor, saved from a tumble into reporters' laps by the sagging ropes. This remarkable Speed-Ray Sound-Photo caught the helpless Pastor almost out of the ring in the 12th round, just before Billy Conn finished him off one round later.



STOP—Bob Pastor is down and on the way out as Referee Billy Kavanaugh warns the surging Billy Conn to a neutral corner. It was all over with one more punch, with Conn victor by a K. O. in the 13th round.

LOUIS NEXT STEP FOR CONN---BUT WILL HE TAKE IT?

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Billy Conn is one step nearer his coveted match with Joe Louis today, but most of the 14,448 fans who saw him knock out Bob Pastor in the 13th round at Madison Square Garden last night are convinced it would be a goose step if the 174-pound Pittsburgher took it now.

Even Johnny Ray, Conn's manager who has been sprouting wrinkles in recent weeks fretting over Billy's physical well-being, refused today to commit himself as to whether he would accept a heavyweight title match. He insists it has not been offered.

It wasn't that the sharpshooting lightweight champ failed to win decisively over the man who stayed a total of 21 rounds with Louis, although the knockout was more than a little tainted. It was the general idea that Conn is very good, but there still isn't enough of him.

ADMITS LOW PUNCHES

While Mike Jacobs was juggling Conn's future in his mind, Pastor was nursing a badly bruised torso and his astute little pilot, Jimmy Johnston, was bellowing "foul."

The bout was peppered with low blows. Two rounds were taken from Conn for below the border shots, and Referee Billy Cavanaugh admitted he would have given the 13th to Pastor for the same cause had the fading Bob been able to rise.

"The low punches took the life out of Bob," Johnston charged. "Why, even the referee admits the last punch of the fight was foul."

It did appear low, but the fact remains that Pastor was a pretty weary and well-thumped fighter when the end came with him writhing on elbows and knees.

LOST TWO ROUNDS ON FOULS

The Associated Press score card gave Conn eight of the 12 rounds before the knockout, and two of those—the eighth and 12th—were gifts because of Conn's wayward punches.

As early as the fourth round Conn had Pastor wheezing from body punches, and by the seventh Pastor seemed a body-weary old man. In the eighth Conn doubled him up with a midsection shot and tried vainly for the kill. Miraculously, the blow seemed to put wind in Pastor's bellows instead of deflating them, and he came back strongly.

Pastor went down for the first time in the ninth from a short left to the face, and he had taken the count of seven when the bell rang.

BEST PUNCH IN 12TH

In the 12th Conn clipped him with the best blow of the fight, a steaming right to the chin which sent Pastor through the ropes. He took nine before bouncing up on rubber legs. He won that round anyway on a foul.

The end came after 2:54 of the 13th and it came with a barrage of body blows, Pastor folding over like a sack of oats at the final punch.

The ending was greeted by a mixed chorus of boohs and cheers by the crowd, which paid $49,415 to see the show. There was no doubt as to who was winning the fight up to that time, but some of the fans didn't like that last punch. Neither did Pastor.

Johnston says he will file a protest with the State Athletic Commission next Monday on the grounds that Conn was warned three times for low punching before the knockout.

Jockey Notes

Conn Speaks

"Well, I guess I've earned the fight with Joe Louis. What makes me really happy is that I proved myself a fit opponent for Louis.

"They can't say I'm too small now. Nor can they say I can't punch. They've got to give me the fight with Joe Louis and they've got to give me a real chance of winning the heavpweight championship.

"I had Pastor beaten in the fifth round. Yes, as early as that. I hit him with a body punch and heard him grunt. His leg came off the floor and he was ready to sag. I knew I had him then, but I wasn't going to make any mistakes and lose him. And I guess I didn't."

Nelson to Lead New Grid Loop

An announcement of great interest to local football fans is the formation of a new semi-pro football league in Greater Boston to be known as the Bay State Football League.

The league will be made up of teams representing the Newton Redskins, Needham Merchants, Medford Redskins and the Middlesex A. A. of Watertown. All of these teams have been organized for several years, playing independently, and this year, playing organized ball, they look forward to even greater success than they have attained heretofore.

The loop has scored its first touchdown in securing the services of genial "Swede" Nelson, former Harvard coach, to act as president. Swede is at present coaching the Eastern All-Stars for their coming battle with the Washington Redskins on Tuesday night at Fenway Park. Nelson's vast fund of football experience is bound to assure the Bay Staters of a great year.

Other officers of the league are Jay Wesley, nationally - known sports commentator, who will serve as treasurer, and Jack Mills, prominent Boston business man, who will be secretary.

All of the teams are liberally sprinkled with former college and all-scholastic stars and it is felt that the calibre of their play will be such as to satisfy the most critical fan. Eastern board officials will be used in all games, and the league will be conducted on the highest possible plane, with doctors in attendance at all times.

The opening game is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 15, with the Newton Redskins playing the Needham Merchants at the latter's field.

The Medford Redskins will be engaged with the Mansfield T. T. on the same day in a non league game at Mansfield.

What the Stars Did

FRED FITZSIMMONS and HUGH CASEY, Dodgers—Let Philadelphia down with 10 hits apiece in winning doubleheader, 3-0 and 14-3.

CLYDE SHOUN, Cardinals—Made 49th appearance of the season a winning one by beating Chicago Cubs 6-4 on six hits.

KEN CHASE, Senators—His eight-hit pitching stopped Yanks' pennant drive temporarily as Senators won 3-1.

BUCK NEWSOM, Tigers—Let league leading Indians down with nine hits and batted in two runs in winning 18th victory of year.

JOHN RIGNEY, White Sox—Pitched Sox to a 6-4 win over Browns with a four-hit job.

Springfield Tackle Joins College Stars

The College All-Stars have signed one more lineman to complete their roster for the Tuesday night battle with the Washington Redskins at Fenway.

He is Vic Obeck of Springfield College, a veteran of the New York contest of Wednesday. The Springfield ace weighs 210 pounds and stands exactly six foot.

He played guard in New York, but Coach Swede Nelson expects to use him at tackle. George Mahwhinney of Brown will be shifted to guard.

Ken Haas of Missouri, George Seabury of Yale and Mike Kopcha of Chattanooga are other tackles on the roster.

The All-Stars had their second workout at the Riverside Golf Club, Auburndale, this morning. Nelson rushed most of the stars to Boston right after the New York game, and had them out for their first workout yesterday afternoon.

$5,000 Classic At Aqueduct

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Two $5000-added handicaps, one for two-year-olds and one for three-year-olds and up, and a $2000-added event which has drawn some of the best distance runners hereabouts, mark the first Saturday program of the fall race meeting at Aqueduct.

The six-furlong Babylon Handicap for two-year-olds drew 15 entries and almost any one of them seems to have a chance, since the real top-flight juveniles aren't running. Best liked are J. E. Widener's Misty Isle and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Seven Hills. Arnold Hanger's Big Stakes, H. P. Headley's Alaking and Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons' pair of King Cole and Bold Irishman.

Favorites Flop At Aqueduct

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—The favorites, who usually do pretty well at Aqueduct, are finding the going pretty rough at the current meeting.

Only one first choice won in seven races yesterday as George D. Widener's strongly supported Rosetown ran out of the money behind the second choice, Mies Ferdinand, in the featured Blue Girl (Class C) Handicap.

Rosetown was a contender into the stretch but stopped in the last furlong while Miss Ferdinand, carrying the colors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lunger's Christiana Stables, went on to catch Mrs. Elmer Trueman's longshot, Toddle On, in the last few strides.

3 Ex-Winners In Laurel Cap

LAUREL, Md., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Capital Handicap, a six-furlong, $7500 event which is one of the highspots of the Laurel autumn meeting, may have three former winners in the field next October.

The entry list of 48 includes A. C. C. Stable's Sun Egret, winner last year; Rough Time, who won in 1937 and 1938 for Yancey Christmas, and Howard Bruce's 1936 winner, Jay Jay.

All are owned by Marylanders who like to see their colors in this traditional feature of Laurel racing. Rough Time holds the stake record of 1:11.

Other nominees include Battle Jack, Fighting Fox, Eight Thirty, Pictor, He Did, Dit, No Competition, Nedayr and Roman.

Injury Jinx Hits B. U.; Lanata Breaks Leg

Old Man Injury, the bane of every football coach, paid an early visit to Boston University to rob the Terriers of their veteran right end for six weeks at least and possibly the entire season.

A short ten minute scrimmage, a warmup for the first official intra-squad battle of the year scheduled for this afternoon, proved very costly yesterday when Joe Lanata, a senior who hails from Mattapan was carried from the field with a broken right leg.

At first it was thought to be a bad wrench but X-ray plates from the Mass. Memorial Hospital early this morning showed a crack in the front of his right leg just above the ankle.

It comes as quite a blow to the Terriers for Lanta seemed headed for a big year.

Too small to play football at English High School, Lanata was a substitute end on the Terrier freshman squad three years ago and as a sophomore, he could not make the training table.

He kept batting away and finally overtook all opposition to win a regular job last fall. This season he put on some badly needed weight and figured to hit his peak.

When Friend Became Foe

Fearing the French fleet would fall into Nazi hands, British warships engaged units of their former ally off El Kebir, Africa. These pictures of the dramatic sea battle, fought two months ago, have just reached America. 1—A British salvo lands smack on the stern of the French battleship Bretagne, setting it afire. 2—The Bretagne, riddled and with stern exploded, turns on side and starts to sink. 3—The Bretagne has gone under and her crew may be seen struggling in water.
